Maple Leaf Flying In Matter of Weeks

Singing Britons See 1964 Out

LONDON (Reuters)—A singing, swaying mass of thousands packed London's Trafalgar Square Thursday night to give a noisy send-off to 1964.

Some merry-makers jumped fully-clothed into flood-lit fountains. In Westminster Abbey celebrants attended vigil and watch night service.

Britain Shakes Up Diplomatic Service

LONDON (CP)—A big change in British diplomacy takes place today. The Commonwealth relations office is absorbed by the foreign office under a form of unification to be known as Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service.

Physically, there may be no dramatic shift for a number of months. There still may be the same number of typewriters and the same number of stenographers. But recruiting will undergo immediate decisive change.

STIFF EXAMINATIONS
For example, in former times Britons could decide to join the foreign service and attempt to pass what was long described as "very stiff examinations."

Or they could take the less arduous civil examinations for home service and thereby qualify for duty anywhere within the Commonwealth.

RARE EXCEPTIONS
Diplomats will be interchangeable. In former times, with rare exceptions, a diplomat who joined the home service could have eventually to become a high commissioner to Ottawa or other Commonwealth posts, but he could not hope to become an ambassador outside the Commonwealth.

In the same way, a member of the foreign office could have eventually to become an ambassador to Washington or Paris, but not a high commissioner to Ottawa or New Delhi. Now they can be switched.

The happy holiday of New Year's—the time for a fresh start and firm resolutions—was celebrated East and West today with customs as varied as the locales.

Temple bells chimed in Japan. South Americans tossed showers of paper from office windows. Romans threw junk to the streets in riddance of the old year.

New York's Times Square, a hub for New Year's Eve celebrators, marked the advent of 1965 with the traditional lowering of a lighted ball from a pole atop the old Times Tower at the stroke of midnight.

Thousands gathered for the event and millions watched on television.

Communists joined in, too.

Communist China announced it would refrain from shelling Quemoy and other Nationalist islands Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 as an "expression of consideration" to allow local inhabitants to celebrate New Year's.

The occasion gave the Soviet

Maine to Texas

Strike Looms On U.S. Docks

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Talks broke off abruptly Thursday, further heightening possibility of a dock strike all along the U.S. Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico coasts by Jan. 11.

Negotiations here centre on the West Gulf from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., but a strike here could cause walkouts as far east and north as Maine.

New York longshoremen have reached agreement and other area negotiations are going on without difficulty. But a strike here could upset the New York agreement.

CHANGE CLIMATE

Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds returned to Washington saying he saw no point in continuing his mediation efforts until the present climate is changed.

The problem, he said, revolves around shippers' claims that Houston dock workers have not reported for work as ordered and the union's reply that ample workers were supplied.

COULD BE STRIKE

International Longshoremen's president Thomas W. Gleason said he did not believe a strike is imminent. However, he said that if all ports from Maine to Texas did not have contract agreements by Jan. 11, a major walkout might occur.

Cuban Refugees Reach Safety

MANAGUA (Reuters)—Eleven Cubans, including three women and four children, have reached Nicaragua after two weeks at sea in an attempt to flee by boat to Jamaica from Cienfuegos, 150 miles southeast of Havana.

U.K. Trade Deficit Continues to Soar

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's balance of payments deficit for the first nine months of 1964—the difference between exports and imports—was £612,000,000 ($1,800,000,000) it was officially announced here Thursday.

These figures, for both current and long-term capital transactions, were given in the latest issues of Economic Trends, an official government publication, which reveals that the deficit for the third quarter of the year alone was £263,000,000.

Political observers said the figures backed up the Labor

Chiang Vows To Destroy China's Bomb

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek Thursday vowed he would destroy China's nuclear installations to block development of a delivery system that could "speed devastation to all parts of the world."

The 77-year-old generalissimo did not disclose how he intended to carry out the pledge made in his annual New Year's message.

He said the "entire human race" had called on him to stop China from becoming a world atomic power.

While ridiculing Peking's claim that it will be able to mass produce nuclear weapons in three years, Chiang conceded that the first Chinese atomic bomb test last October was "a danger signal for our nation."

West Coast Floods

HELICOPTERS BEAT STORM

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A dozen helicopters finally got through Thursday on food supply and evacuation flights to California's Salmon River canyon hamlets isolated for 10 days by flood and snowstorm.

On the Pacific coast an overnight snow—rare along the Pacific shore—covered California's Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

Landslide dams raised new flood threats in the Redwood lumber region, hardest hit by the $1,000,000,000 Christmas week flood which ravaged areas of five western states.

HEAVY SNOW

Renewed heavy snow was forecast for the Sierra and the Siskiyou mountains.

A snow New Year's Day was promised also for the flood-stricken states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Nevada.

The break in the storm at Yreka after four days of snow turned loose 12 helicopter pilots for shuttling flights to the isolated canyon towns of Ti-Bar, Sawyers Bar, Forks of Salmon, Cecilville and Findle, Camp.

LOVELY REGION

Between 300 and 500 hardy people live in the lonely river gorge region.

All residents chose to stay by their homes in the rugged Siskiyou region near the Oregon border.

Two families marooned in a three-room cabin after the flood washed away the Ti-Bar forest ranger station reached Yreka by helicopter Wednesday night.

EXPECTING CHILD

In the group was Mrs. Larry Evans, 21, who expects a second child within a week.

In coastal Humboldt County up to an inch of snow fell and then melted in Eureka, the region's major city of 30,000.

A lake three miles long has built up behind a landslide that formed a dam 800 feet high on Hurdy Gurdy Creek in Del Norte County.

About 50 people live at Big Flag, below the slide.

LAKE GROWING

Another lake was building behind an earth-slide dam at Gun Barrel Camp on the Smith River.

Charles Wood, disaster chief of the U.S. office of emergency planning, said the Army Corps of Engineers was trying to transport equipment to open a channel in the Hurdy Gurdy dam.

Vancouver Digs As Snow Falls

VANCOUVER (CP)—More heavy snow hit a cowering Vancouver Thursday, just in time to decimate party-bound traffic.

Cab companies did a frantic business after the storm struck at dusk, delivering a heavy fall of wet snow on a brisk wind.

But even taxis soon were going out of business. Police cars were moving with difficulty with chains.

The weather system was expected to leave six to 12 inches of new snow behind, taking the total average fall here in the last two weeks of December to more than 40 inches.

Roads by 7 p.m. were extremely dangerous under a one-inch layer of new snow thickening rapidly.

The storm covered the entire coast, including much of Vancouver Island. (See Page 12.)

Meanwhile, relief in one form was on the way. Continuous snow had resulted in Greater Vancouver using up its supplies of rough salt needed to melt snow and ice on streets.

MORE SALT

The Canadian Pacific Railway announced that nine carloads of salt were on a "hot shot" train—virtually an express freight—that left Toronto Thursday. It was expected to arrive in five days. Eleven more cars were leaving Friday.

The city Wednesday recorded its third death attributed to the weather. Richard Fladgate, 52, controller of Vancouver General Hospital, died of a heart attack while digging his car out of a snowbank.

Greater Vancouver schools and the University of B.C. said they planned to open on schedule Monday.

Malaysia

British Troops To Sail

LONDON (AP)—Two British battalions, infantry and paratroops, will sail for the Far East within the next few days in view of Indonesia's increasing build-up against Malaysia, the defence ministry announced Thursday.

The third Greenjackets will go to Hong Kong to release from there a Gurkha battalion for service in Malaysia. The 2nd Parachute Battalion will probably go to Singapore.

Advance troops from both units will leave England this weekend.

A British battalion numbers up to 1,000 men.

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) Syed Putra, Malaysian Supreme Head of State, called on Indonesia Thursday to end its undeclared war against the federation.

In a country wide broadcast he said that in face of the Indonesian military reverses in Malaysia and defeat abroad, it would have been reasonable to expect President Sukarno to have a change of heart.

Stanley Matthews Knighted

Soccer Star Wins Place on Honors List

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth's New Year's honors list issued Thursday made awards to key men behind Britain's new export drive, Olympic athletes and one of the world's greatest soccer players.

The annual honors list, first since Prime Minister Harold Wilson's new Labor government came into power, introduced a special distinction—"for services to exports." Two knighthoods were given in this category, to Maurice Fennes and Ronald Thornton.

Awards were made to three British athletes who competed in track and field in the Tokyo Olympics, the most successful for Britain more than 30 years. The athletes are Robbie Brightwell, Ann Packer and Mrs. Mary Rand.

The first-ever knighthood to a professional soccer player went to Stanley Matthews, who will be 50 next month.

The list, approved by the Queen in close consultation with the prime minister and government departments, followed the pattern set by previous British Labor governments in that hereditary titles were excluded, although there were four life peerages.

Three men of special interest to Canada are mentioned: Sir Saville Garner, 56, British high commissioner in Canada from 1956-61, is promoted to a Knight Grand Cross from Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Sir Saville, now permanent undersecretary of state in the Commonwealth relations office, also served in Ottawa during the Second World War. He has honorary law degrees from the Universities of Toronto and British Columbia.

Appointed a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George is Alexander Curral, 47, the senior British trade commissioner in Canada. Before taking up his Ottawa post in December, 1963, Curral was head of the British industries development office in New York.

Appointed a Commander of the Order of the British Empire is Prof. Joseph Rothblat, 56, secretary-general of the Pugwash conference on science and world affairs. The annual conference, involving some 25 countries from both sides of the iron curtain, originated in 1957 at the Pugwash, N.S., estate of Canadian-born Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

The citations specifically for services to exports are expected to recur in future honors lists. Fennes, a member of a consortium presently exploring for oil and natural gas in the North Sea, played a big part in 1956

Series of Storms

Snow Threats Keep Coming

A fast-moving weather disturbance passing over Victoria overnight and early today was expected to bring cooler temperatures and wet snow.

After that, Victorians can brace themselves for a snow-carrying low-pressure system that is now moving down the coast from the Alaska Peninsula, says weatherman William Mackie.

The storm, quite large in size, has already brought snow to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Mr. Mackie said he is hoping moderating temperatures from the Pacific will dilute the snow with rain.

Temperatures today may go as high as 38 to 40 degrees, after an overnight low of 32 to 35 degrees.

Saturday should be cooler, cloudy, with partial clearing and a possibility of snow flurries.

Rebels Strike Hard

Fresh Graves Bait for Ambush

SAIGON (AP)—Fresh graves baited the bodies of four U.S. Army helicopter crew members were the lure for a Communist Viet Cong ambush near Binh Gia on New Year's Eve.

Viet Cong guerrillas still clinging to jungles about the Roman Catholic refugee town shot up a detachment of 100 South Vietnamese marines as they dug into the graves to check the identity of the dead.

South Vietnamese losses were believed to be extremely heavy and a U.S. Marine captain was wounded. The marines withdrew.

"The Viet Cong have done this before — used graves of Americans as bait," a U.S. officer said. "They know we have to go in and get them."

The four new graves were found next to the wreckage of a helicopter that burst into flames and exploded at tree-top level Wednesday night as it was covering marines collecting the bodies of troops killed in the assaults that recovered Binh Gia, 40 miles east of Saigon, from the Viet Cong.

Tensions of war and politics were reflected in Saigon celebrations of the advent of the new year. The capital's curfew was lifted for the night, but security forces were on watch against a coup or terrorism.

Some intelligence sources said Viet Cong cells had selected nine targets for bombing. Among these were listed Saigon Airport, the U.S. Information Service, a night club and several U.S. servicemen's billets.

COUP RUMORS

Rumors persisted of a possible coup in the armed forces. A number of military officers said two basic factions—one headed by Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the commander-in-chief, and the other by various army corps commanders—were deadlocked and might try to fight it out.

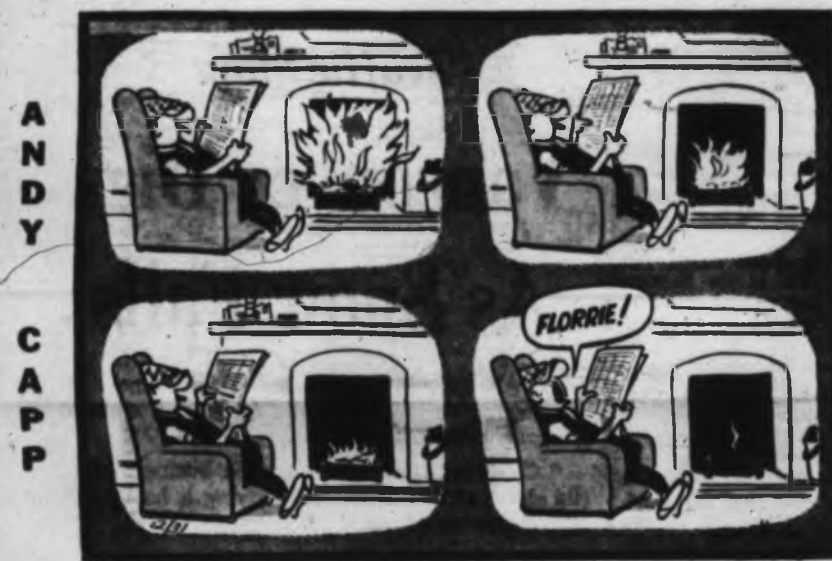

De Gaulle Drops Hint France May Quit NATO

PARIS (UPI)—President Charles de Gaulle said Thursday night France refuses to accept U.S. "domination" and hinted he might go so far as to take France out of NATO.

De Gaulle hinted he might pull the French out of NATO when the NATO pact comes up for renewal in 1969. But he indicated he had no intention of quitting the Atlantic alliance itself.

Later, in a recorded New Year's Eve television speech, de Gaulle said he was determined to keep France "independent—politically, economically, financially and in the field of defence." But he said France is ready to co-operate with the United States as an ally.

"Our country, which does not seek to dominate anyone, intends to be its own master," he declared.

Your Good Health

Early Start on Solid Food Averts Feeding Problems

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am breast-feeding my baby girl. Mother said that all she needs for about six months, but my doctor started her on strained food at one month. Who is right?—Mrs. H.B.

Follow your doctor's advice. That's what you see him for.

It is true that babies can survive and sometimes thrive on breast milk alone for quite some months, but not always.

First, one must be sure that the baby is getting enough food. Sometimes, if there is not sufficient breast milk for a baby, supplementary bottle feedings are necessary. Weight is a clue.

LEARN EARLY

There is an additional reason for starting strained foods. A baby can learn to like them early, and this avoids a "feeding problem" which sometimes develops if the child is some months old before having its first introduction to solid foods.

I do not say that your mother is necessarily wrong, but she might be.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a sinus headache for five months. At times in the morning, blood and pus come down in my throat from the nasal passages. None sprays do me good and hot applications help only as long as the heat remains. Please advise if I should see a specialist and if possible I may have a tumor?—N.M.

Yes, you should consult a specialist—or at least you should see your regular physician who may advise going to one.

You say it is a sinus headache. It may well be. For one thing, it could be a huge polyp obstructing normal drainage and thus permitting infection.

BENIGN TUMOR

I rather doubt that it is a tumor (other than a polyp, which is a form of benign tumor) but a headache for five months is a symptom which should not have been tolerated so long, and the bleeding is an ominous sign which demands immediate diagnosis.

Make an appointment with your doctor. It's your health; in this case the first thing you need is professional care, both for diagnosis and for treatment.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a parakeet and recently a friend told me that the bird can carry "parrot fever." I have several grandchildren and would like to know if there is any danger to them.—Mrs. O.W.

Parrot fever (or psittacosis) can be carried by parrots and similar birds, and transmitted to human beings. But the disease will be transmitted only by birds which have the disease. Healthy birds are perfectly safe.

In humans, psittacosis amounts, in general, to a case of virus pneumonia. With good care, most of the sufferers will recover, but who wants pneumonia?

If you buy only from a reliable source, you needn't worry about parrot fever.

Johnson Grooms Russians

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson has expressed to Russia's leaders a hope that the new year will bring progress toward disarmament and the control of nuclear weapons.

"You may be certain that the American people and their government will never be second in this effort," he said.

The president said New Year's greetings and best wishes to the Soviet people and their leaders.

Police Seize Liquor Still

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police raided a 25-foot still in a garage and warehouse and found 50,000 gallons of mash, 227 five-gallon cans of 180-proof alcohol, 224 10-gallon bags of sugar and a "boiler" with a capacity of 2,000 gallons.

Honors List Out

Two newspaper men won Commander of the Order of the British Empire awards. They are Richard Fry, financial editor of The Guardian since 1939, and Edward Spencer Shaw, political correspondent of The Exchange Telegraph, a domestic news agency.

The life peerages, all baronies, went to George Cole, Sir Howard Florey, Sir William Holford and Sir Christopher Hinton.

Cole is head of the giant Anglo-Dutch Unilever soap, fats and foods group.

Florey, born in Adelaide, Australia, is president of the Royal Society. He also is a Nobel prize winner and one of the discoverers of penicillin.

Holford, born in Johannesburg, South Africa, is a top architect, famous for his work in rebuilding the precincts of St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

Hinton, who has played a major role in development of atomic energy in Britain, retired Wednesday after seven years as chairman of the Central Electricity Generating Board.

Top honor for a woman went to Nancy Parkinson of the British Council, a state-sponsored cultural organization. Miss Parkinson became the first-ever Dame Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George for her work in organizing hospitality for overseas students visiting Britain.

The three top members of the British Olympic team became Members of the Order of the British Empire. Brightwell was team captain and relay silver medalist. Ann Packer, now Brightwell's wife, won gold and silver medals and Mrs. Rand won three medals.

A knighthood was awarded to Sir Leone Prime Minister Albert Margat, the only Commonwealth leader on the list.

Wrong Body Cremated

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shaughnessy Hospital here has started an inquiry into a switch of bodies that resulted in the wrong one being cremated.

Discovery of the mixup was made Wednesday when the two sons of Joseph Sullivan, 94, went to a funeral parlor to pay their last respects and found the body of a stranger dressed in their father's clothes in his coffin.

The body was identified later as that of Daniel Sullivan, 73. Stan Sullivan, son of Joseph, said Wednesday the two elder Sullivans looked very much alike. They had the same coloring and the clothes fitted perfectly.

He said when they discovered the strange body in their father's coffin an investigation was started and they were told that their father's body had been cremated earlier in the day.

New Year Welcomed

international time differences enabled Rapanov Island, in the Soviet Arctic near the Bering Straits, to beat at least most of the world in welcoming 1965.

Brazilians began celebrating during the day with carnival music. The celebration coincided with the official beginning of Rio de Janeiro's 400th anniversary.

In South Viet Nam, the Saigon curfew was lifted for the first time in a month to allow a whole night of revelry. But the celebration was a wary one because of intelligence reports that the Viet Cong guerrillas planned terrorist attacks.

In Seoul, Korea, New Year's Eve was a time for revelry, but police first picked up more than 1,000 hoodlums and juvenile delinquents to keep the celebration as orderly as possible.

The Communist wall in Berlin was open to West Germans for visits to relatives in East Berlin. Communist border guards appeared in a jovial mood, one greeting each visitor with "A happy New Year to you."

The Polish government was tolerant to the point of allowing stern-faced Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomułka to be among personalities portrayed by marionettes on Polish State Television.

Londoners had extra drinking time, with public houses, restaurants and night clubs allowed to serve longer than usual. But also there was a strenuous government campaign against drunken driving. Drivers who got into trouble over the Christmas holiday a week ago were fined the equivalent of several hundred dollars.

In the United States, motorists along various toll roads had offers of free coffee from restaurants or service centres.

This service coincided with a report that 80,000,000 adult Americans, or 71 per cent of the adults, drink alcoholic beverages.

Awaits Report

Pearson Rejects Judicial Probe Of Immigration

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Thursday rejected, at least for the time being, the New Democratic Party's demand for a judicial inquiry into the immigration department.

He told a press conference he knows of no reason for such an inquiry at least until the government receives a special report, expected next week, by Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick into the department's administrative procedures, including those dealing with deportation.

Mr. Pearson announced that a team of outside management consultants will be hired soon to recommend improvements in immigration department administration.

Further more, Immigration Minister Tremblay had been asked to prepare a white paper on immigration policy and procedures for presentation to Parliament after it resumes Feb. 16.

Mr. Pearson made several other points:

● The Queen on Christmas Eve approved the design of the new maple leaf flag, which would be flown officially for the first time in about six weeks.

● Any "house-cleaning" in the government would be done if needed, not to make a show to satisfy those who alleged wrongdoing. All his cabinet colleagues were "honest and honorable men."

● Relations between French- and English-speaking Canadians — the problem "closest to my heart" — had improved in recent months.

● He will leave Saturday for a Florida vacation.

Woman Dragged For 1,200 Feet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mrs. Mary Jacobson, 22, was dragged 1,200 feet under a car early Thursday before being saved by an alert taxi driver.

Mrs. Jacobson was reported in fair condition in hospital, recovering from cuts, bruises, burn marks and fractures after the accident about four blocks from her home, RCMP said.

Howard Abrams, a taxi driver, saw another car snag Mrs. Jacobson as she lay on the road and chased the car in his taxi until the car halted at a stop sign.

The driver of the car, whom police identified as Hugh Kelly, 37, told police he was just about to pull away from the stop sign when Abrams started pounding on his window.

He said he had been unaware of the accident and had not heard the woman's screams from under his car.

RCMP said a tow truck was needed to free Mrs. Jacobson's leg from a tie-rod under the car. Ice on the road had enabled her to slide freely, preventing more serious injury.

Challenge of 1965

IT HAS BEEN said, perhaps with a modicum of truth, that the New Year is held as a festival only by pagans, non-Christians and strangely enough, Scotsmen.

But while this day, unlike the Christmas celebration, has no Christian significance, it is among all men a period of goodwill, during which the past is laid aside and truths are pledged that standards—moral, personal, economic and international—will be raised in the twelve months to come.

For us in Canada, 1964 has been a year of great economic and industrial development. Modern methods, modern machinery, and, of course, capital, have opened up some of the copious bounty bequeathed by Providence on this vast and mainly rugged land of ours.

More than fifty years ago Sir Wilfrid Laurier predicted that the 20th century would belong to Canada. This was too grandiose a claim, for not even the most powerful nation in the world can pre-empt such possession, but his general thesis has more substance today than ever it had.

If 1964 was good for Canada, there is no reason to believe that 1965 should not be as good or better. From Newfoundland in the east to Vancouver Island in the west, great man-made projects are evolving.

In British Columbia, which leads the provincial pack in its rate of development, the major happenings on the Peace and Columbia Rivers; the expansion of the great pulp and paper industry, and the development of huge new mining projects, ensure that progress will be maintained, not only for this year, but for many years to come, and with it steady employment and higher standards of living.

Today 1965 dawns with great new challenges and great new hopes for all our young people who equip themselves mentally for the electronic-space age.

While it is true that these are temporal rather than spiritual affairs, we should take the opportunity of this first day of 1965 to thank God for the mercies he has bestowed upon us, and determine to use them according to the teachings of his Son, whose Advent was the herald of promise for this earth.

Equality at the UN

IN THE PURSUIT of the UN all member states are equal, except that when it comes to UN police forces some are more equal than others. Only upon those nations with the troops and the money, and the willingness to supply both, does the obligation fall.

This does not deter the countries lesser in stature and physical means from seeking the highest posts, however, as witness the bid of Mali, a recent African entry of tiny capacities, for a seat on the Security Council.

It was to avoid a showdown with the Soviet Union and its UN supporters, who refuse to pay their share of the costs of UN forces in the Congo, Cyprus and elsewhere, that the General Assembly devised an informal poll method of electing new non-permanent members of the Security Council. Mali will split with Jordan on a two-year term, but had it persisted in demands for the usual formal vote an open clash on the dues issue would have been unavoidable.

Russia and the other dues-paying countries would have come up against Article 19 of the Charter, which indicts those failing to pay up and provides for withdrawing their voting rights. This would bring to a head the deadlock between the Soviet Union and the United States, the latter of which underwrites the largest share of all UN costs and is understandably growing tired of such one-sided arrangement.

It was to postpone confrontation and the threat of grave disruption while negotiations to settle this controversy take place in UN backrooms, that the Assembly chose to bypass orthodox election procedure.

One may easily see here the difficulty of ever mounting the all-embracing brush-fire UN police force which the Charter makes relevant and of which so much airy talk abounds. Canada for one, and with commendable virtue for she has no axe to grind and both pays her share and rapidly puts forces at the disposal of the UN, is in the forefront of those anxious to see such a component formed. This is one of the diplomatic planks of Prime Minister Pearson. But the present impasse over dues and voting rights indicates it will be a long time yet before a permanent UN force comes into being.

Its creation would involve a neutral approach to all the trouble spots where brush fires threaten to flame into massive conflagration, and in all UN intervention so far the Soviet bloc has either opposed such action or withheld its financial support. As has been stated, some members states are more equal than others. The political cold war which exists has not warmed to the degree that offers the substance of unified UN action, and the world body is running out of the funds needed to keep it going.

And without both money and an acceptance of UN obligations in general, formation of an overall UN police force seems to be far off.

Meanwhile the matter of dues and voting rights has been set over until the UN meets on January 18. Perhaps the New Year will bring about a reconciliation—not at the moment apparent on the horizon. Certainly this would be a New Year present the world would welcome.

Two Flags

MR. PAUL: I hear the hon. member for Maison-neuve-Rosemont (Mr. Deschatelets), my good friend the Minister of Public Works, how enthusiastically the voters will salute you when you offer them these two flags. You could say: My dear constituents, we are the only government in the world to give two flags to its citizens.

I hope to have the opportunity to see the flag for special occasions flying in front of the house of the Minister of Public Works and the second flag behind his residence or vice versa. What a sight, Mr. Speaker, two flags being bestowed on Canada.

I see the hon. member for Lotbiniere (Mr. Choquette), my good friend, I would like him to name a republic in the world which has two flags.

Mr. Choquette: Nigeria.

Mr. Paul: Perhaps the republic of Lotbiniere will have two flags.

Mr. Choquette: Name me a party with two leaders who disagree.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

WELL, this felicitous morn with no snow flurries in sight, I hope, a Happy New Year to you all.

If you have survived the vagaries of this column as far, not to speak of last night's Hogmanay, during which I a first-footer I trust you made due obeisance to the fates with a lump of coal or a dark hair-do, natural or artificial, perhaps you deserve all the happiness you can get.

Which is, after all, the most desirable factor of human existence.

Happiness implies an absence of all the varying ills, physically and otherwise, to which one is prone, and if these keep their distance the barometer is set fair.

There is too, belonging to this first day of 1965, the magic word "new."

Newness isn't always one's cup of tea, of which wisely I should say if going the social rounds today, but it can be intriguing. The unknown is always fascinating, albeit something new in the sense of a new bus fare or a new tax or other unpleasant "news" that has leaked out in advance doesn't belong in this category.

New Year's Day does, even if it isn't unexpected since we have one every twelvemonth. Maybe it should be re-captioned Fresh Year's Day.

For we look on it as a fresh start to our annual pilgrimage of the years. If there is a degree of suspense attached to the anticipation, not knowing for sure what's ahead, it's in a hopeful spirit we welcome the calendar that shows today the 364 days to follow as of 1965 A.D.

Not bothering to remember, either, that one year more is one year less in the scale of life.

We are, however, as is well instanced by the spring fashions that appear while we shiver in winter overcoats, never anyway if not in Victoria, no?—and magazines dated a month ahead of publication, fond of rushing things. If we weren't there wouldn't be a jet aircraft in the skies.

So it is was that last night we bade farewell to 1964, quite patiently without a qualm else all those caculatory salutes as the chimes sounded 12 times were but a sham, possibly an excuse, glad to enter a "new" phase of the sequence of time.

The chances are, you know, that by and large 1965 will be a repetition of the years gone by. The ups and downs of personal glee and gloom, respectively, are apt to follow the normal pattern. The UN I doubt will be more brotherly than its custom, unless perhaps next Hogmanay night in temporary festive mood. Our uniformed chaps will still be in the Gazi Strip, maybe also in Cyprus. There is no flag debate scheduled for 1965, which is one distinct difference in prospect, but presumably the acrimony which marks parliamentary discussion will be as rampant as ever. The years go on but there is never "newness" in this respect.

But I would not decry the hopeful eye with which we greet 1965. By no means. My own breast springs eternal to the universal wish for health, a safe port at the end of our journeyings, the hearth of home abiding snug and sound and the abiding affection of our families and friends.

Which is why, as I knock on your door this morning, I bid you Happy New Year.

Serious Damage Possible

Stalling in the Assembly

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

DISTRESS signals are flying at the United Nations. This is serious for Canada because our people, from coast to coast, and of all parties, believe a strong United Nations to be mankind's main hope in these days when it is possible to destroy civilization.

Consider for a moment what has been happening to the world organization. Normally the 1964 General Assembly would have met in September and by now would have completed its business.

Instead, the gathering was put off until after the American election in early November. Then it was postponed until December in the hope that there would be a settlement of the dispute between the United States and the Soviet Union over payment for peace-keeping operations.

The Soviet Union has taken the position that it will not pay any of these heavy costs and as a result is now in arrears for over two years—and could be deprived of its vote. The United States insists that this step be taken.

There should be no doubt in the mind of any Canadian that the Soviet Union is entirely in the wrong on this issue. The Americans cannot be blamed for taking a strong stand; they have been paying more than their share of the bills for a very long time.

When the session of the Assembly did open there was general agreement that no vote would be taken on a controversial issue—thus avoiding a showdown on the Russian arrears. The Secretary-General, U Thant, and the president for this year, Quai-sin-Sackey of Ghana, thought the problem would be settled if time were given and the General Assembly merely conducted the usual general debate until a settlement was reached.

Postponing the opening was one thing; but once that took place the Assembly should have gone about its business in the normal way rather than stalling. Serious damage may have been done to the United Nations by handling the question this way.

Admittedly the United States and the Soviet Union are the two super-powers in our world of today. Their views must always as any other nation to give leadership in this crisis. It should be directed to getting the assembly functioning—whether the United States and the Soviet Union can agree on payments or not.

If she took this initiative a large number of nations would support her; the prestige of the United Nations would be maintained and the move might be the real way to bring about an early settlement of the dispute between the two super-powers.

Fortunately neither of them wishes to flout world opinion. Neither is trying to place itself above the United Nations. What we are witnessing is an international poker game with some big bluffing being done.

There seems to be a tendency to leave the problem to the secretary-general. His position is exceedingly difficult under the best of conditions and his recent illness must have made the burden of his office seem intolerable. We should not expect one man to solve this problem. That is the responsibility of the leaders of the member nations in which category Canada belongs.

As I said in the beginning the distress signals are flying. The United Nations is at a fork in the road—it can go on to greater accomplishments but it can also start on the road to decline. If the latter road is taken it will be a sad day for all nations.

Canada is now and always has been one of the strongest supporters of the United Nations. She could do as much

I hope the Oak Bay council knows what it is doing by restricting apartment buildings to three storeys. Hundreds of people are coming to Victoria looking for sea-view apartments to buy or rent. One can travel to any country in the world where there is seafront, built up chiefly by hotels, apartments and guest houses.

I am shocked by the apathy of taxpayers in Victoria and district; a population of about 165,000 people, with four councils, four police forces, four fire brigades, four building codes and what not. Why not amalgamate, and save taxes and bring down the cost of living. I feel sure it would be to advantage to all concerned.

YOURS FOR PROGRESS

The Ensign

I think the following prose aptly describes the feeling we "Red Ensigners" have for our flag:

The Red Ensign, as we all know, Watched our land and people grow. Soon it will be taken away, And that will be our saddest day.

As this is the flag we know and cherish, We do not want to see it perish. So raise your voices loud and clear, "Please keep this flag we love so dear."

Defence Changes

With this old world of ours in such a chaotic condition, it is indeed alarming to those who think about the bare-brained attempt at re-organizing our Canadian armed strength. With much instability as seems to prevail at this time, to undertake such a colossal measure would inevitably induce an enemy to attack.

Regardless of this feature, such a measure was bound to be totally impracticable during the Boer War not only by our Canadian government but also by

A Look at 1964

Year of Rebellion

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from London

WHATEVER it was, it was not a marvelous year. To whomsoever it belonged, it was not to Britain. It was a brutal year, a year of blood, and some of it was ours. It was shot through with anger, and much of it was anger against us. It resolved nothing. It was in the course of history a horrible bus-stop, where the lavatory was closed and the bar empty, and the officials surly and the timetables out of date, and all the seats taken, though we had clearly booked our seat, and paid in advance.

Of course, it is a journalistic convention, or the trick of an amateur historian, to pick up a single arbitrary January to December and examine it as the Emperor of Japan examines a starfish in his marine laboratory. We like to classify it, to cut it up neatly and to lay it away in a preserving solution of newspaper clippings and old photographs and to give it a name. There is now a special virtue in embracing any convention, if only for the virtue of being eccentric. Pick then the last year out of the imperial tank, look at it closely and put it back with a slight shudder. It was too unpleasant even to crush.

It was a year of rebellion. And much of the rebellion was senseless and ugly, which gave pleasure and organic excitement to the rebels. One grew heartily sick of the faces surrounding the burning of yet one more British embassy or U.S. library. It went on and on until even the most sea-green and incorruptible liberal began to dream of gunboats and the stocks, and to years for old virtues expressed in the love of mother, in respect for law and order, and in crowds waiting in the rain to see the Queen go by.

There was Cyprus tearing at its own entrails and blaming Britain for the pain. There was the hot, clove-scented island of Zanzibar seized by political brats who behaved like amateur gangsters in the name of the usual sacred clichés. There were the three East African "armies" which mutilated, and when the British strained themselves to restore the semblance of order, no one had the courage or the political authority to say "thank you" as we were taught to do after parties. There were the Buddhists in Viet Nam, dedicated to the annihilation of self, to non-violence and the idea of the utter holiness of life, acting it up like a lot of turbulent medieval priests fighting for the right to be tried in clerical courts.

There was Southern Rhodesia making some very off-color remarks about the nature of their connection with Britain. There was Camille Clary making a fool of the sports-writers and choosing a new faith that knocked him off the women. There was the president of France pursuing a lonely policy and the French gaily surrendering democracy and doing very well out of it. There was Peking

Some perfectly respectable sovereigns jockeying to pay their club dues to the United Nations. There was the refusal, the hushed refusal, of the British electorate, to make any clear choice of their preference in the general election. In a sulky mood, the Catholics began to say their Mass in English. There was the livid reaction of old friends to that 15 per cent imposed on non-essential imports into British which came, at the time, as a painful surprise.

There were the Olympic athletes insisting that they had to do the running and were not going to be treated like Yermolovs. There was the unquenchable horror of the Congo.

There was Pope Paul, clearly ticked as a conservative, breaking the traditions of the Sacred Palace and behaving like a Christian and fighting his way through the second entry into Jerusalem and approaching the pagan East in an attitude of humility and quaking. Rabindranath Tagore from the highest high altar in the world. None of the English potatoes would boil right this year. There were more rude plays. And, I repeat, there were the Beatles.

And all of it, obscurely, directed against me, I, and when I write I, of course, mean you, feel like a nanny of infinite experience who has lost control of a Christmas party and the well-bred air is full of flying buns.

WOMAN DRIVER.

New Expenses

Having read the beef of "Hitchhiker" regarding the old age pensioners and bus fares, I'll portray my experience in Seattle last year. My wife and I were going to town, when mine host said, we will not take the car today. It's such a job parking. We four left the house and I got aboard first to pay the fares, produced 50 cents, and the driver said that's no good, 40 cents each, one way, so I.00 it was. I thought how lucky we were to pay a 121-cent fare, one way, in Victoria.

One must be able to meet the new expenses in life or forfeit this travelling to town as we all know there are shopping facilities in every district.

OLD SWEAT.

Election Yet

"We want to red in our old flag, Without the white and blue."

This was the chorus of a ballad well known among loyal Canadians of Regina, Sask., about 1938.

After a quarter of a century and a Second World War what have we got. A flag with lots of red and no blue. Some call it Pearson's Political Pennant, some say it is "dish-raggy."

Of course many Canadians want a flag of their own but flags are supposed to have some historical significance. If the new flag is a true symbol of Canadian culture and civilization, then God bless Canada.

We are told the flag question is settled. No question is settled unless settled with justice and fairness.

Can Mr. Pearson confirm this flag in the next election by appealing to Washington and the powers that rule Quebec, as he did in the last election? WALDRON GREENE, 8128 Hixton.

thumping its nose at the con-domed source of doctrine and exploding its own bomb and pebbles crying for a world revolution at literally any cost. There was the trial of the perpetrators of the Great Train Robbery, with most of the money still stashed away in the cupboard of a five-piece bedroom suite somewhere in a respectable red-brick suburb. There was the marriage of that film star to that Welshman which made them, overnight, the celebrities of the world. There were the Beatles.

There was Archbishop Herring on the Pill and Lord Russell on everything under the sun. There was the Bishop of Woolwich cutting Almighty God down to size. There was the Crown Colony of Aden—and no one ever dared to bring out a travel poster about that place—longing to be free of its source of revenue and cutting up rough about it. There was the Yemen, not going so far as to free its slaves, but welcoming foreign troops to free itself of its dynasty, and detesting Britain in the process.

There was the George Cross island of Malta making a curiously religio-political muddle of the freedom offered it on a great silver salver that was made in a back room in Whitehall. There were the Egyptians solemnly opening the first stage of the High Dam in the manner that was meant to hurt us and the late Mr. John Foster Dulles. There were those strange young Englishmen, one lot androgynous, the other suspiciously over-male, fighting it out with deck-chairs on the beach where I used to build sandcastles, and doing it all over again for the press photographers.

There were the American upper classes heating the British at sailing boats, for the America's Cup, and doing it with contemptuous ease. There was Mississippi and three dead men, murdered and buried in an earthen dam. There was Senator Goldwater's incoherent attempt at a coup d'état under the forms of democracy. There were the Harlem riot which physically terrified at least one newspaper correspondent and turned a downtown area into a separate state for which the only acceptable passport was a Black face.

There was that ineffective imperialist, President Sukarno, behaving like Pitt the Younger when confronted with a putative challenge to his shores. There were Catholic riots in Belfast about a flag, and we all thought that they, at least, knew their place in time. There was the Third Session of the Vatican Council and the liberal bishops calling in a rustle of purple to demand their democratic rights—as if it were a parliament with King Charles I peering at the door. Dame Edith Sitwell died and we were impoverished.

Some perfectly respectable sovereigns jockeying to pay their club dues to the United Nations. There was the refusal, the hushed refusal, of the British electorate, to make any clear choice of their preference in the general election. In a sulky mood, the Catholics began to say their Mass in English. There was the livid reaction of old friends to that 15 per cent imposed on non-essential imports into British which came, at the time, as a painful surprise.

There were the Olympic athletes insisting that they had to do the running and were not going to be treated like Yermolovs. There was the unquenchable horror of the Congo.

There was Pope Paul, clearly ticked as a conservative, breaking the traditions of the Sacred Palace and behaving like a Christian and fighting his way through the second entry into Jerusalem and approaching the pagan East in an attitude of humility and quaking. Rabindranath Tagore from the highest high altar in the world. None of the English potatoes would boil right this year. There were more rude plays. And, I repeat, there were the Beatles.

And all of it, obscurely, directed against me, I, and when I write I, of course, mean you, feel like a nanny of infinite experience who has lost control of a Christmas party and the well-bred air is full of flying buns.

WOMAN DRIVER.

New Expenses

Having read the beef of "Hitchhiker" regarding the old age pensioners and bus fares, I'll portray my experience in Seattle last year. My wife and I were going to town, when mine host said, we will not take the car today. It's such a job parking. We four left the house and I got aboard first to pay the fares, produced 50 cents, and the driver said that's no good, 40 cents each, one way, so I.00 it was. I thought how lucky we were to pay a 121-cent fare, one way, in Victoria.

One must be able to meet the new expenses in life or forfeit this travelling to town as we all know there are shopping facilities in every district.

OLD SWEAT.

Election Yet

"We want to red in our old flag, Without the white and blue."

This was the chorus of a ballad well known among loyal Canadians of Regina, Sask., about 1938.

After a quarter of a century and a Second World War what have we got. A flag with lots of red and no blue. Some call it Pearson's Political Pennant, some say it is "dish-raggy."

Of course many Canadians want a flag of their own but flags are supposed to have some historical significance. If the new flag is a true symbol of Canadian culture and civilization, then God bless Canada.

How Wealthy Will We Be?

Experts All Predict Boom Year for B.C.

By IAN STREET
Colonist Legislative Reporter

1965 has all the earmarks of another boom year for British Columbia's already soaring economy.

Everyone, from Premier Bennett to Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, agrees on that and most authorities seem to be trying to outdo each other in predicting the degree of prosperity.

Premier Bennett said the province has never had a better year than 1964 and points to statistics that bear out this claim. But he adds that B.C.'s economy is only just beginning to move and the best is yet to come.

Coined Phrase

He coined the phrase "The Dynamic Society" to describe what lies ahead.

Last year B.C. broke records in almost all sections of the economy and this unparalleled prosperity was sparked to a large degree by capital investment in the province, which totalled a record $1,000,000,000.

Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loftmark predicts that next year this capital outlay may exceed $1,500,000,000 "thereby eclipsing by a fair margin the record investment program of 1964."

Bigger Profits

This buoyant outlook reflects the optimism of the great majority of B.C. industrialists.

A government survey released at the year's end showed three out of four industrialists in the province expect sales to rise in 1965 and more than half look forward to increased profits. This is much higher than expectations of a year ago.

Mr. Loftmark expects the overall buoyancy of the economy—both domestic and worldwide—to improve B.C.'s export trade.

This is how the year ahead is shaping up:

● British Columbians will continue to earn, spend, manufacture and buy more than ever before.

● Capital investment will be greatest in the forest industry, where more than half a dozen pulp mill applications remain to be dealt with early in the New Year, and in mining where two new multi-million-dollar mining operations are to enter production.

● The quickened pace of the economy, after 1964, during which B.C.'s labor force grew by an estimated five per cent, is expected to lead to greater manpower shortages, particularly in the skilled trades and technical and professional personnel.

● A court battle looms in the Supreme Court of Canada over off-shore oil rights which both Ottawa and the provinces claim are within their jurisdiction.

This is of vital importance to B.C. because oil companies have spent millions probing the sea bottom from Port Renfrew to the Queen Charlotte Islands.

● B.C. will make an all-out bid at National Energy Board hearings scheduled for spring to capture the lucrative California market for natural gas from northern fields. The cabinet last month ordered a survey of the province's gas reserves as part of preparation for its case to have Alberta gas, which now goes south, diverted to eastern Canadian markets.

● Early this year construction of the coffee dam for the 120-foot high Duncan Lake hydro project on the Columbia River will get underway. The dam is to be completed by spring, 1968, and the High Arrow dam, near Castlegar, will be started later in the year.

● Far-reaching implications exist to the inter-belt between B.C. Hydro and Bonneville Power Administration in Washington State which is scheduled to begin operation in May. The 500,000-volt power line connecting the two systems is now under construction, and is expected to enable future sale of B.C. generated power as far south as California.

There will be a carryover, too, from the great events of 1964.

Bank Battle

Premier Bennett will undoubtedly continue to battle the Senate and anyone else who wants to deny the B.C. application for a federal bank charter. He is unlikely to accept Mr. Strachan's suggestion that new legislation be brought before the session starting Jan. 21 to set up a provincial banking system, by-passing Ottawa.

There'll be a lot more said about the "big cheque"—the $273,000,000 U.S. payment under the Columbia River Treaty—and the premier has promised that there will be many benefits to B.C.

It was this lump sum, the importance of which can be measured by the presence of both President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson at Peace Arch handover ceremonies, that permitted B.C. to lend $300,000,000 to Quebec.

Yukon Merger

Mr. Bennett said this was the "crowning achievement" of his government and marked the successful conclusion of seven years of struggle dating back to Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

It is also the touchstone that has produced the unparalleled flow of foreign and domestic capital into this province.

We'll hear an occasional reference to the Yukon spicer with B.C., but probably there will be no further moves unless the people of the northern territory indicate they want action.

Queen's Visit

Premier Bennett will probably have a few surprises up his sleeve when he and most of the cabinet visit Japan in the spring. With trade missions in both directions during 1964 the groundwork has been laid for some major announcements.

There will also probably be confirmation sometime this year of the Queen's intention to visit B.C. in 1966 when we will celebrate the union of the crown colonies of Vancouver Island and the mainland a century ago.

Premier Bennett will achieve a personal record Feb. 15 when he becomes the longest serving premier in the history of B.C., beating the record 12½ years set by Sir Richard McBride.

The birds, mostly geese and swans and a few ducks, have been camping on their doorstep since the weather began to get cold.

There is nothing bashful about the geese who one night waddled up to the door at 11 p.m. in search of food. Mrs. Innes immediately baked them some scones.

The birds and the Innes family have been friends since July when the couple moved to their home on Elk Lake.

They began feeding the birds with stale bread from a local bakery but it later proved to be too expensive.

They are now fed cracked corn and wheat.

ANOTHER WHISTLE

All the birds answer to Mr. Innes' whistle when he feeds them before he goes to work in the morning.

The swans were the first to make friends with Mr. Innes, and the geese and ducks followed.

Almost any day of the week, a flock of the birds can be seen in the Innes yard. When the temperature drops they sleep under the sun porch.

Killed for Cursing Devil

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A shoe maker shot and killed a mother of eight because she cursed the devil.

The woman, Salma Fakheery, 45, was bathing her child outside her hut on the outskirts of Beirut.

Garnab Mardikian, 63, was passing and heard the woman cursing the devil in her annoyance at the child's idleness. He shot her three times in the chest.

Police said Mardikian apparently was a member of the Yazidi sect, which worships the devil. If a person curses the devil in the presence of a Yazidi, he must either kill the person immediately or commit suicide, according to the sect's rules.

HOUSTON — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor left Methodist Hospital Thursday and moved into a three-room suite at the plush Warwick Hotel in time to celebrate the New Year.

MINEOLA, N.Y. — Long Island policeman Martin DarConte, 41, was critically wounded when his 15-year-old daughter Carol Ann shot him three times with a revolver. The shooting came during an argument after Carol Ann and her mother, Lillian, were arrested on shoplifting charges.

MONTEREY, Calif. — U.S. soldier Pte. John Husby, 22, out on the town with four buddies, bet he could down 26 ounces of gin without taking the bottle from his lips. He did it. At reveille next morning Husby was found dead in his bunk from alcoholism.

CHICAGO — Private airplane pilot Thomas G. Molona has sued the federal government for $1,030,000 because of a crash in which his wife, daughter, mother-in-law and their maid died. He alleged the federal aviation agency failed to heed his emergency request to land at O'Hare International Airport.

TUCSON, Ariz. — Salvatore (Nino) Romano was released from jail Thursday on $25,000 bail, but had to borrow money for plane fare to New York where he will testify Tuesday.

before a grand jury investigating the disappearance of his father, Mafia overlord Joe Bonanno.

WASHINGTON, Me. — Mrs. Kate Moore, reported to be the oldest member of the International Typographical Union at the age of 104, has died in a nursing home. Mrs. Moore belonged to the union for 72 consecutive years, retiring Dec. 28, 1932. She had been a typesetter.

JERUSALEM — Mordechai Leah, the man found in a Calabound diplomatic trunk at Rome Airport, agreed to be divorced after his wife told a rabbinical court she had been forced to work to support herself and children. Louk faces trial on charges of spying for an enemy power.

LONDON — Mr. James Gunn, who was the highest-paid portrait painter in Britain, has died in London. He was 71.

Congo Report Missionary Trampled To Death

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Refugees rescued from Congolese rebels said Thursday American missionary William McChesney was trampled to death, his body mutilated and then thrown into the Wamba River.

They reported rebel warriors did a savage war dance of death on his stomach until he died.

McChesney, 28, a Protestant missionary from Phoenix, Ariz., was one of 28 white hostages, some Canadian, slaughtered by rebel warriors at Wamba, 250 miles northeast of Stanleyville.

SIXTH AMERICAN

He was the sixth American missionary killed by the Communist-backed rebels in the northeastern Congo in the last two months. He had been in the Congo four years with the World Wide Evangelistic Crusade.

Some of the whites were shot, others bound and tossed into the crocodile-infested river and others beaten to death with rifle butts and clubs, the refugees reported.

Approximately 200 white hostages now are known to have been killed by the rebels.

Flying Flags Together Voted Down

A proposal to fly the Red Ensign and the new maple leaf flag, side by side, was defeated by the Old Boys' Parliament of B.C. in its final session here Thursday.

The proposal was one of three brought out as opposition motions before the 69-member parliament over the past four days.

REHABILITATION

The other motions, which were passed on final reading Thursday, included one which called for elimination of capital punishment and establishment of new psychiatric clinics for rehabilitation of criminals, and another calling on the provincial government to launch an educational campaign on the benefits of fluoridation.

"UNITED"

It was announced previously for the 34th session the government and the opposition had agreed to be a "united house."

Mainland delegates left for home in chartered buses about 3:30 p.m.

Church Nearly Finished

RIPELEY, Miss. (AP)—College students who raised a new Negro church on the shores of one that burned after a civil rights rally, began heading for home on Thursday.

Their new Antioch Baptist Church stood unfinished, but with most of the major work done. A modest steeple adorned the front.

"I just wish we could have completed it before we left," said Marshall Aronoff, a student from Ohio.

"We have on our side the knowledge that the public is in favor of commercial radio."

Five unlicensed offshore radio stations now bombard the mainland with recorded music and commercials.

Three operate from boats beyond the jurisdiction of the British government and two from abandoned Second World War forts in the Thames Estuary near London.

BBC MONOPOLY
In Britain there are no legal privately-owned radio stations. The government-supported British Broadcasting Corporation has a monopoly and does not broadcast commercials.

Since the pirate radio stations began operating in March, 1964, they claim to have built up an audience of about 6,000,000 listeners.

Early in the New Year the British government plans to introduce legislation that would force the pirates off the air by making it impossible for them to be supplied from shore.

Curb-Crawl By Strikers Paralyzing
TORONTO (CP)—A procession of curb-crawling cars, organized by striking printers, paralyzed downtown traffic for four hours Thursday and delayed newspaper delivery trucks.

Traffic game to a standstill as the procession crept along King, York, Bay and Queen Streets, an area in which two of Toronto's daily newspapers—The Star and The Globe and Mail—are situated. The third, The Telegram, is several blocks to the west.

Limping Leo Scorns Crisis

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (UPI)—Bow-legged Leo, the limping lion with the falsetto growl, spent a quiet New Year's Eve at home, placidly ignoring the legal storm brewing about his stringy mane.

The two-year-old pseudo king of beasts faces eviction from his man-made luxury den in the garage at the rear of the home of Howard Sautter, an automotive towing service operator who reared him from a cub.

YAWN
The deadline is Saturday. Yawning Leo couldn't care less. But a determined Sautter is challenging the validity of an ordinance by the Abington Township commissioners which rules out anyone keeping wild beasts at home.

The hastily prepared and adopted law defines a wild animal as any animal of a species which is generally of a wild nature or disposition, requiring training by art, industry or education, etc.

Other than his 317 pounds, Leo doesn't resemble a ferocious jungle killer. He's more like

The papers were served on Sautter last Tuesday and the five-day grace period to comply expires Saturday. That's when the legal-bagles get to work. Until then, Sautter is just sitting tight.

ALL THE WAY
He retained the law firm of Yollin and Mallman, and there's the chance that Leo might go as far as the U.S. Supreme Court, like all of the other important cases.

"If need be, we'll go all the way," said attorney Hubert Yollin.

The firm also represents a pet shop in the township whose "wild animals" presumably come under the ordinance. The law could put the shop out of business.

Other than his 317 pounds, Leo doesn't resemble a ferocious jungle killer. He's more like Bert Lahr in the Wizard of Oz. Actually, there's a good probability Leo wouldn't have survived two years on his native African veldt. Nature wasn't very kind to him.

His legs bend like a cowboy's and his front feet point in opposite directions, like the hands of a watch at six o'clock. It gives him a shuffle akin to a drowner with corns.

On top of that, he suffered the utmost in indignities when the current row arose. Sautter, in an effort to keep peace, took him to the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary School, where a surgeon's scalpel robbed him of his lionhood.

charged with assaulting a police officer.

Three city police officers and one from Oak Bay testified that the accused kicked, struck, and spat in the face of officers attempting to arrest him on a charge of being drunk in a public place.

The incident occurred early
June 8 on the lot of an Oak Bay Avenue service station.

Defence counsel Rodney Taylor argued that since the drunk conviction arising out of the same incident had been quashed on appeal to County Court, the police had no legal right to arrest the accused.

Under these circumstances, said Mr. Taylor, any citizen has the right to resist unlawful arrest, by force if necessary.

City prosecutor Peter Birkett said the police had reasonable grounds for thinking at the time that the accused was drunk and therefore made a lawful arrest.

Mr. Ostler reserved judgment and adjourned the case to
Jan. 12.

The court ordered a psychiatric report on Christopher Kitley, charged with attempted suicide, and remanded the case to Jan. 4.

Kitley said he had been undergoing psychiatric treatment and had on more than one occasion recently requested to be returned to Esquimalt provincial mental hospital.

Lambros Tzanetos, captain of the Libetian-registered Ss.
Planet, berthed at Oak Point, was fined $250 for illegal possession of liquor and cigarettes.

The court was told that 217 bottles of liquor and 2,600 cigarettes were found concealed under a mattress and in a closet by RCMP who searched the ship after it had been cleared through customs Wednesday.

The court was also informed that a $400 penalty had been placed upon the vessel.

Henry White was sentenced to three months in jail after being convicted of possessing a $150 overcoat stolen from a Government Street clothing store.

Police testified that an old coat was left on the rack when the new one was taken.

White told the court that he had stayed out of trouble "ever since I stopped using drugs" and was now close to beating a drinking problem.

"You have done well over the past three years," the magistrate said. "But you cannot substitute liquor for drugs. One is as bad as another if you use them to excess."

Garden Notes

And So to 1965

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One book which has always fascinated me is the Diary of Samuel Pepys, an intimate day-to-day account in the life of a high admiral's official covering the period between the years 1660 and 1689.

Written in code—it was not deciphered until 150 years after his death—Pepys was frank in recording "gifts" received in return for admiralty contracts and naval appointments which he had helped negotiate.

This all has a strangely familiar ring in the light of current investigations in Ottawa.

It was Sam's habit, at the turn of the year, to cast his accounts, list the gifts received—often in the form of costly silver plate—and evaluate his net worth in comparison with the previous year.

At the same time he would seek what lessons he could learn from the past year's experience which could be applied in the year to come, for baring this tendency to accept petty graft, Pepys was a hard-working and conscientious civil servant.

It seems to me that we could take a leaf from Sam's book over the New Year and examine our gardening operations of 1964 for lessons to be learned.

I can think of several experiences which will guide me in my planting and cultivating throughout the coming year.

For one thing I will be sowing far more of my seeds directly into the outdoor garden next spring. Not all of them, of course, for very small seeds like those of petunias and all the slow growers will need an early start indoors or under glass, but with the huskier subjects, results have been far superior when the seeds were simply bunged in the ground.

Indoor started plants of the "Twinkles" phlox and the dwarf sweet william "Wee Willie" were skinny and too tall, while a patch where the seeds were just scattered on the soil surface produced compact, well-branched plants which bloomed only a week later and much more prolifically.

Zinnias made stouter, more short-jointed plants when sown fairly late after the soil had warmed up, and seemed more free from disease and pest troubles.

I am coming to believe, too, that indoor-started seeds get off to a better start if germinated in extreme heat, in far higher temperatures than I have ever used before.

I never had any luck at all with coleus seeds until I tried sowing the pots on top of our furnace, between 85 and 90 degrees, which brought the seedlings popping up within four days.

The new pelleted seeds also seem to hang fire in an infuriating way when sown in ordinary room temperatures; it seems they need considerable heat to decompose the coating on the seeds.

Mind you, these heat-grown seedlings must be transferred as soon as they emerge to a cool, sunny environment.

The extreme heat is required only for the rapid and vigorous germination of the seeds; once germinated, the seedlings become overly tall and skinny unless they are grown on in a much cooler atmosphere.

Another lesson learned in 1961—learned the hard way, I might add—is to buy fresh seed every year; not to waste time and labor sowing seeds left over from the previous spring.

Old seeds may come up quite promptly and with almost as high a germination percentage as new stock, but the plants lack vigor and fall prey to every little trouble that comes along.

For many years I have been under the impression that any seed capable of germinating was a good seed, and I have always been most reluctant to throw out left-over seeds.

A hopelessly poor patch of cucumber and marigold plants grown from old seed in 1964 has taught me the error of my ways.

What Are We Talking About?

Ways to Say Nothing

By WOODROW WIESIG

The difference between "the right word" and "almost the right word," as Mark Twain used to say, is the difference between lighting and the lightning bug.

This problem, penetrating as it does all aspects of selling communications, bothered business and marketing men more than ever last year. Now that the shopping and selling rush is over, it may be useful to relax and ask ourselves: "What are we saying?"

Purists have accused advertising of corrupting the language, mostly on the grounds of grammar, tip to a point, this may be a valid concern. But another question arises: is the real issue a step further—in the threat from fading shades of meaning?

As communications expand, communication seems to contract, and we now have ways of saying nothing that ever before. So let's examine such things as "the faceless phrase," "the borrowed reference," "the incantation," and "the foam-rubber phrase" and the directions they may be taking us.

The faceless phrase: "Total performance" must mean that everything on a particular machine works. The "better than best" school of copywriting is still very much alive. What, for example, does "softer than soft" mean? or "far more effective."

A motorist recently wrote to the auto editor of a mechanics magazine enclosing an ad that promised "30 per cent less wear" and asked 30 per cent less than what? The editor answered: "Sand." Some faceless phrases do set consumers to thinking.

The borrowed reference, a cousin of the faceless phrase, is a word or phrase that does have a precise meaning in some other field, which the advertiser is trying to transfer to his own product.

"Supersonic sale," says a department store ad, which must mean "fast sale"—something like a speeded-up movie? or the ad that says "the lid's off," which might mean the lid is off a jewel box, a garbage can—or a scandal.

Idiom is an old-time aid to advertising, and there's no point in picking it apart—provided everyone draws the same connotations from the code. When a store advertises a woman's coat as "so far out, it's in," it gets close to the edge of this area, both in comprehensibility and acceptance.

A subdivision of the borrowed reference is the incantation—or the claim that some thing contains "Stablegrop XL-27." Out of some 18,000,000 viewers of a television commercial we can assume that 37 biologists plus the ad agency itself know what the phrase actually means—but it sounds scientific, and that, in our own age, can be as impressive as the magic spell was a few centuries ago.

On the everyday level, words that distinguish various degrees of the same general topic—"irritated," "indignant," "angry," "furious," for example—can slide into synonymy. Perhaps they do so because people no longer draw such distinctions, or perhaps the distinctions begin to blur because people can't express them.

Emerson, who wrote, "The corruption of men is followed by the corruption of language," obviously thought it was the first way around.

In any event, the blurring of values and verbal distinctions go hand-in-hand when people no longer bother to draw a sharp line between fact and supposition. "If I was going to agree" is bad grammar. But this is secondary to the fact that it moves one step closer to eliminating the line between "I will agree" and "I may agree."

Eventually, people can quit using words such as "irritated," "angry," or "furious" altogether and begin falling back on omnibus words that require little specific thinking.

"Joe's mad about this," they say, leaving you to find out for yourself whether Joe is slightly annoyed or smashing up the furniture in hysterical rage (or, at the other end of the verbal spectrum, enthralled). This is the foam-rubber phrase—the phrase so softened by indiscriminate usage that it can be punched into almost any shape.

No single group of people can be blamed for the growth of the foam rubber phrase. It is essentially the product of an inability to make distinctions and an unwillingness to make judgments, and the responsibility, therefore, can be laid at a good many doors. The educators certainly play a big part, and so does the government.

Advertising has contributed by compromising such words as "warranty," "guarantee," "tested," "different," "finer," and so on; by taking values out of their context through the use of the word "only" on price tags, and by doing its damndest to turn "more" into an absolute noun.

We are constantly urged to "get much more," as if "more" could be bought by the quart. If we listen to ourselves, we may learn a lesson. But—will we learn it in time?

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Lufts Prepare for War

NEW YORK (NANA)—Judy Garland will keep her children with her in New York, until the time comes for her to go to California for the big divorce battle with Sid Luft—about two and a half weeks. She will take them with her. I hope that Mark Herron, who is with Judy in New York, will accompany her to Los Angeles. She will need support. Sid Luft does not give up easily and wants the custody of their children. Judy is not the strongest person emotionally. But even the calmest, most secure woman would quake at the prospect of the upcoming divorce tussle between the Lufts. . . . And it's going to be just as rough when the Alma Lerner case tells their story in court. But I can't imagine that all of the charges and countercharges I have heard, will actually be brought. There's a limit.

They'll have to write a bit of motherhood into Wendy and Me which stars George Burns and Candice Bergen. For Connie, of course. The stork has scheduled a landing.

David MacNeil has a pressing business date in London next month and he has asked well known television packager, Mort Goodman to take over for him in Hot Line until he returns. Mort was excellent recently on David's Open End show.

Little Roman is on her way to Mexico to get that divorce from her Italian count. She has to start a new movie, A Young Swedish Girl in Germany on January 20. She will be co-starred with two top young German actors.

Jennifer West who prefers Broadway to Hollywood, opens here in her play, A Diamond Orchid Feb. 10. She plays Kitty Ferron, and she was delighted to get the role which at one time had been considered for Anne Bancroft or Geraldine Page. That's fast competition. Miss West, a good actress, alternated with Barbara Loden in Arthur Miller's play After The Fall.

You can see Mae West, our old come-up-and-see-me-sometime Mae, in color in the next Show Magazine. Mae hasn't posed for pictures since I don't know when, and here she is, with her pet monkey in her boudoir. It's a sight for sore simians.

Shirley Temple has changed her mind about starting in a situation comedy on television. Doing a series in Hollywood would have meant, of course, that Shirley would have to live in town at least five days a week, going home to San Francisco for weekends. She did it once before when she had a weekly show. Very tiring, and lonesome being away from the family.

Peter Finch has been taking the slowest boat back to Britain from Israel where he co-starred with Sophia Loren in Judith. To forget Shirley Bassey, apparently. He was named as the other man in her divorce. But Shirley's husband seems to have dropped the suit, and it looks like a reconciliation. He was a constant visitor to the singer while she was hospitalized recently. Peter's wife has not withdrawn her suit. And so you have a lonely man on a slow boat. Ah well, there is always work, and coming up for Peter is a picture with Melina Mercouri, in Paris, with Jules directing.

Cornelia Ryan's Blockbuster of a book, The Battle of Berlin, has been bought by MGM. With George England to produce. . . . Cliff Robertson has finished his long and difficult Up From the Beach, which happens to be another story of war. War is very popular with producers these days. Cliff fell in love with a Messerschmidt, and before returning home, Cliff stopped off in Munich to arrange for the dismantling and shipping of his prize to California. Cliff collects old planes, which is better than collecting old girls. And what happened to his fairly new girl, Diana Merrill?

Centennial Year

Blakeney Rose 'Miss Canada'

The rose hybridized by Fred Blakeney of Victoria will be recognized by Canada's National Rose Society as the rose honoring Canada's centennial year, states the January, 1956, edition of The Rose Bulletin.

But, it will be called Miss Canada, and not Centennial Rose.

An American nursery firm which copyrighted the title Centennial Rose may have the name but not the honor, according to the society, the Canadian Association of Nurserymen, the Ontario Horticultural Society, and many of the Canadian parks and horticultural groups.

TESTIMONIALS

Their testimonials to Mr. Blakeney's Miss Canada rose take up nine of the 11 pages in the latest Rose Bulletin.

Mr. Blakeney, who lives at

Alcohol, Cold Kill City Man

Sidney Holdridge, Jr., 44, died Dec. 16 in a shed in downtown Victoria of "acute intoxication with the effects of exposure," a coroner's jury ruled Thursday.

It was the coldest night of the year.

"He was a man who loved his drink," a witness testified.

HAD NO HOME

"He had no home and he usually slept wherever there was a drink," said William Webster, who said he had known Mr. Holdridge for more than 30 years.

Mr. Holdridge's body was found in a shed at the rear of an apartment at 920 Pandora Avenue early Dec. 16. He had apparently curled up on an old bed under some blankets, but the doors of the shed had been left wide open.

Pathologist Dr. Ross McNeely testified a sample of the man's blood showed an alcohol content of .33 per cent.

ABOUT 18 OUNCES

"This would indicate he had consumed about 18 ounces of alcohol. A lethal blood alcohol

Cheque for $8.50 Saanich Fowl Play

There's some "fowl" play going on in Saanich council, as far as Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jessop, 389 Viaduct, are concerned.

On Monday night they intend to find out if council is for the birds or not.

On Nov. 11, 17 of the Jessops' 25 hens were killed, apparently by a neighborhood dog.

COMPENSATION

The couple complained to council and were promised compensation.

Thursday a cheque for $8.50 arrived and Mr. and Mrs. Jessop both hit the roof.

"Fifty cents is just an insult," Mrs. Jessop charged. "They were worth between $2.50 and $3 each."

'64 Cool to Cruel In City Weather

The year 1964 won't be quoted in tourist brochure blurbs about Victoria weather — it went from cool to cruel.

June, July and August were a triple disappointment with the wettest, dulltest summer in years.

NEAR-RECORD

Before the year was over the thermometer took a near-record plunge to 6.9 degrees Dec. 16.

Midsummer was so gloomy that July's mean temperature of 58.6 degrees was the 12th lowest in the last 77 Julys.

For the statistically minded, some comparisons:

Precipitation of 23.36 inches for 1964, which included 5.3 inches of snow, was closer to the all-time low of 16.01 inches in 1952 than it was to the record high of 19.36 in 1887.

MAY SUNNIEST

The sunshine total of 2,035 hours was in between the lowest figure of 1,947 hours in 1914 and the highest of 2,545 in 1931. May was the sunniest month, with 264.3 hours, far below the record of 424.7 hours in July, 1956.

Mean temperature for the year was 49.0 degrees, about the same as in recent years.

Island Area Voices Flood Fear

Special to the Colonist

Fears that a sudden thaw and rain could turn high-piled snow into a fast flood were voiced in one area of Vancouver Island Thursday — but weather forecasters predicted more snow and cold.

North Cowichan works supervisor Perry Ross said he was "very worried because any sort of fast flood would be very bad."

ONLY HOPE

"If it rained and got warm at the same time the Cowichan River would fill in a hurry," he said. "The only hope would be that the river might get wild enough to cut itself a new channel to the sea."

However, other municipal officials said they felt recent river work, including dredging of sandbars, would take care of any rush of flood water.

FOR BOTH COASTS

The forecast for both the east and west coasts of Vancouver Island was continued clouds and cold, with snow flurries or scattered snow showers today and Saturday.

Gale warnings were posted in most areas. Temperature extremes were estimated at 25-38 for Nanaimo and 32-3 for Estevan Point.

FIGURE GIVEN

Snow resumed Thursday afternoon or evening in almost every up-island area. Ground totals at 8 p.m. were about a foot in the Cowichan area, 16 inches at Nanaimo, 30 inches in the Alberni, 28 inches in the Comox Valley, 11 inches at Tofino and seven inches at Estevan Point.

Victoria weatherman William Mackie said the overnight fall could total six inches but warm temperatures this afternoon might melt much of that.

The daily routine of nighttime freeze and daytime thaw was continuing to cause road trouble.

The Malahat was described as "slippery," caution was urged in the Duncan and Nanaimo areas, and Courtenay district road conditions were termed treacherous.

Highway problems seemed to be worst in the Alberni. Snow tires or chains were required for cars going over the Hump into the area and the Alberni-Tofino road was being kept open by what some were called "amazing" efforts by road crews.

The Alberni's snow total of almost 80 inches for December was far over the previous record of 48 inches in 1911.

Long Beach Transport was still getting through to the Tofino-Uchuel-Long Beach area with mail and other freight.

RCAF Station Comox, closed temporarily Wednesday, was kept open Thursday partly through the help of a huge snowplow flown from Edmonton in a Hercules transport plane.

BUS LINE BUNY

Vancouver Island Coach Lines was the only means of transportation for many people between Parksville and Campbell River. Cars with chains were going into ditches but buses were making trips even before snowplows started work.

Coach Lines official David Jones said all of his company's buses were in service as people decided to leave their cars at home.

WORK SPURNED

A wall of snow more than six feet high divides many Courtenay streets in half. Few sidewalks are cleared and meters are forgotten as cars, pedestrians and children on sleighs use only the road — and no accidents so far.

One Courtenay store manager said he couldn't find enough youngsters to shovel off his roofs, even at $1 an hour. Some children said they were on holiday and the work was too hard.

STATION ISOLATED

The federal transport department's Loran and weather station at Spring Island lost its only means of obtaining supplies and mail from the nearby community of Kyquoot when the station boat Tulloch broke from its moorings and ran onto some rocks.

A Kyquoot vessel will be chartered until the Tulloch can be replaced.

Many Missed Home Grant

The deadline passed at 5 p.m. Thursday and many Greater Victorians failed to claim the $85 homeowner's grant.

Saanich was about the busiest municipal hall as dozens of homeowners made last-minute claims Wednesday and Thursday.

A few people trickled into the other municipal halls but officials said scores of ratepayers were phoning to check if they had claimed the grant.

Crime Down, Convictions Up

Victoria Was Safer in 1964 Under Revamped Police Force

By AL ARNASON

Victoria was a safer place to live in 1964 than it was in 1963, according to police statistics.

Common assaults, sex crimes, burglary and fraud all showed substantial decreases during the first 11 months of 1964 compared with the previous year's figures.

Criminal convictions also took an upswing in 1964 with December figures as yet not tabulated.

Assault reports climbed to 171 in 1963, but dropped better than 30 per cent to 122 in 1964. Of these, 97 were cleared by arrest or investigation and ended in 33 convictions—nearly twice the 1963 convictions.

Sex crimes dropped from 45 to 33 with 10 convictions handed down by the courts, a 100 per cent boost over last year's conviction total.

Breaking and entering, one of the most common criminal activities dealt with by the city's 104-member force, plunged dramatically from 482 to 273 occurrences. Convictions for this offense also took a tumble from 31 to 25. About 100 have never been solved, compared with last year's 306 outstanding break-ins.

Gambling, Vice Down

The costly and time-consuming crime of fraud nose-dived by a third to 190 from a 1963 total of 304 incidents. This included bad checks, false pretences, and gaining food and lodgings by fraud.

The gambling and vice picture came into clearer focus as new-broomed police investigated six gaming house setups and pushed through 14 even convictions. There were none in 1963.

Prostitution came to the surface in six persons were convicted in the past 11 months in three cases.

Robbery statistics look alarming at first glance, with 75 in 1964 compared with four in 1963.

Chief John Gregory, now more than a year into his two-year term as top city policeman, says it's misleading.

A new police system of tallying robberies now embraces purse-snatchings (about 20 this year), and borderline thefts, distorting the figures.

Even so, robberies have increased "some."

Not Violent Town

"But this is not a violent town," said the chief, who served earlier in Kijimati and other industrial centres with the RCMP.

Most of the work of reorganizing the force has been completed or started, said the chief.

Of 56 Archer Report recommendations, 47 were in force in the first few months of the Mountie's leave of absence to take on the Victoria police shakeup.

Biggest headache for the force was the headquarters building that Mr. Archer described as being like something out of Dickens.

"We hope to be able to move into the renovated building some time this fall, maybe September. When that's done most of the problems will be ironed out," the chief said.

Another major change has been the switch of responsibility for investigation of bootlegging and gambling from uniformed to detective branch.

Police More Efficient

Some other major changes have contributed to higher police morale and efficiency. They include:

- Bringing departments into closer interplay.
- Launching a vigorous, varied training program.
- Switching radio communications to a code system.
- Establishing closer control systems for keeping track of court exhibits.
- Increased training of breathalyzer operators.

Training constables in detective department duties two at a time in six-month shifts.

In nine months the job of reorganizing the department will probably be complete.

That's when the police commission will make its decision on the next move—and it is also the end of Chief Gregory's leave of absence from the RCMP.

Would he like to stay on? "That's up to the police commission," said the chief without elaborating.

Public Demand

Beer Parlors End Meal Hour Closing

Greater Victoria beer parlors have bowed to public demand and starting today will abolish closure during the supper hour.

The area's 14 pubs will remain open from 11 a.m. to midnight Monday through Friday and 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

During the past year staying open between the normal 7-to-8 p.m. supper hour was optional but hotelmen have decided to remain open for the next 12 months on a trial basis.

"If the public doesn't like it, we'll switch back," a spokesman for the Greater Victoria Hotels Association said.

The ruling affects the eight Victoria pubs, three in Esquimalt and three in the Langford-Cowdard area.

STAGGERED HOURS

Many beer parlors throughout B.C. have already abolished the supper-hour closing.

It means waiters will have staggered supper hours.

Local pubs have closed during the hour for about 12 years.

Happy Christmas Comes to Cassiar

Cassiar, B.C., population about 100, had its "first happy Christmas in six years" because of the men of HMCS Naden, said school principal W. T. Godden in a letter received at Naden Thursday.

A fund spearheaded by Chaplain A. G. Faraday collected 600 pounds of clothing and $200 worth of toys and other gifts which were sent to the settlement before Christmas.

The letter of thanks received Thursday read:

"The people of Cassiar would not have known the real joys of Christmas without your gifts. The clothing was sorely needed here. This is the first time in six years I have been here, they have had a happy Christmas," wrote Mr. Godden.

Most of the money collected was donations from the various messes and the proceeds of carol service staged by the personnel of Naden.

Eaton's department store gift-wrapped, packaged and shipped the clothing and gifts free of charge.

Used Cards Sought Here

Mrs. H. A. Arnold, 30 Howe Street, Thursday issued her annual appeal to Kijimati Victorians for their used Christmas greeting cards.

Mrs. Arnold, who sends the cards to children in schools and hospitals in Formosa, India and Bolivia 110,000 last year, says, "These cards are sometimes the only pictures these people have in their homes."

New Bus Fares Now In Effect

The new schedule of fares effective on B.C. Hydro bus routes in Greater Victoria went into effect at 6 a.m. today.

The new schedule was approved recently by the Public Utilities Commission. It allows fare increases of about 50 per cent—less than the B.C. Hydro asked but much more than most municipal leaders and voters' groups thought should have been allowed.

Adult cash fare is 20 cents with four tickets sold for 75 cents.

CASH FARES

Student cash fare is 15 cents with four tickets for 50 cents. Cash fare for children is 10 cents with four tickets for 30 cents.

Student fares, which are good at all times, apply to pupils under 21 years of age regularly attending classes up to grade 12. Official school passes must be shown bus operators at the time students fares are purchased.

Child fares apply to any person under 13 years of age. Children under five may ride free when accompanied by an adult or student.

OLD TICKETS

Old tickets may be used for 10 days (up to 12:30 a.m., Jan. 11) as follows: Adults—

Present minimum zone tickets plus seven cents cash, present zone two tickets plus four cents cash; present zone three tickets plus two cents cash.

Children—minimum zone fare ticket plus three cents cash; zone two tickets plus two cents; zone three ticket accepted for fare.

Students—children's ticket plus eight cents for minimum zone; zone two ticket plus seven cents; zone three ticket plus five cents.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has no interest in a new political party.

Before heading south for a holiday, Mr. Bennett said:

Building and Beautification

By A. H. MURPHY

Colonist City Hall Reporter

The new year will be one of challenge for Victoria. And, if the buoyant, confident atmosphere at city hall is an indication, it will be one of challenges met and conquered.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and the other members of his "team" who are back in municipal office, feel that the city's beautification program must be pushed to the utmost.

It will be a year of completion for such projects as the $3,000,000 Centennial Square complex and with others, such as Bastion Square, it will be a year of starting and completion.

Another massive job which will be begun in 1965 will be the $1,000,000 six-lane traffic artery which will channel cars from the city's northern border to its heart.

The city's massive capital budget program will move into its second stage and; in addition to the more spectacular achievements such as buildings, squares and malls, there will be a lot of work done on basic plans, such as trunk sewers, park improvements and maintenance.

Early in the new year the Capital Region Planning Commission is expected to hand down a traffic study which has been long in preparation.

This report is of vital importance to Victoria and to the whole area. Upon its recommendations will depend, to a large extent, future planning for the city and, particularly, for Saanich.

A big social event as well as one of importance to the city will be the opening of McPherson Playhouse in February.

Work will still be in progress on the theatre restaurant and an adjoining scene loft at the time of the opening but the playhouse proper will be ready for action.

Centennial Square, of which the theatre is a part, will be completed in 1965, it is expected.

Work will be started early this year on Bastion Square. Plans have been almost completed and the reconstruction of the historic old lower town site should be completed in late spring or early summer.

Second stage of the downtown paint-up plan will be completed in 1965 and plans will be begun for the downtown pedestrian mall.

This mall, which will include Broad Street, will do as much as anything so far accomplished to change the appearance of the heart of the downtown area.

Big things should develop in urban renewal in 1965.

Under the new regulations it is expected that it will be possible to apply urban renewal programs to non-housing areas of the city. This means that it could apply to downtown areas and open up vast possibilities for the city.

Work and study will undoubtedly go forward in 1965 on plans for the area's centennial project.

This may well be a covered stadium for the district as advocated by so many local sportsmen.

Work will begin in earnest on the five-mile Japan Gulch tunnel which will boost the city's water supply sufficiently to serve a population of 250,000.

Today Opens Year of Challenge for Victoria

Time has run out on 1964, and the Expo 67 pendulum is ticking away the hours to remind Canadians of the biggest birthday party in the country's history. The big celebration will be the opening of the 1967 Universal and International Exhibition at Montreal—now just two years away.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you about 95% of the time. Today I feel the need to set you straight.

Your statement that doctors are immune to the charms of attractive women patients is ridiculous. If this were true no physician would be able to find a woman sexually attractive. And few physicians would ever be married.

I speak as an attorney who has maintained an active practice for 20 years. I've heard hundreds of complaints about physicians from women who have been subjected to questionable behavior and comments during physical examinations.

I believe that most doctors behave themselves in the office but many do become involved with female patients. I know this is true because my father and two brothers who are doctors have discussed it quite openly for years. Do you dare print this?—BARE FACTS

Dear B. F.: Any physician who could become sexually aroused by the sight of a female patient on his examining table is too unbalanced to be practicing medicine. And if he survived even for a few years it would add up to a minor miracle.

Since there are thousands of physicians in this country, one must expect a few dingbats. Every field has them. I've heard some pretty wild stories about milkmen, postmen, plumbers and TV repairmen. Some stories are undoubtedly true, but most of the lurid tales are products of an overworked imagination.

I would not say physicians are better behaved than lawyers, engineers or business executives, but I WILL say that romantic involvements do not start on the examination tables.

Dear Ann Landers: We are two high school students who

New Beauty This Year

By GILIAN WADSWORTH

TORONTO (TNS) — Do you burn the candle at both ends? Smoke too much? Remember that health and beauty go hand in hand.

Dr. Eva Macdonald, former specialist in internal medicine at Women's College Hospital has this advice to all women, regardless of age:

"Proper diet, exercise and good mental health are essential to good looks."

It would be well for you, according to Dr. Macdonald, to combine the qualities of the backish person, who likes to stay at home, and the outdoorsy type.

Since exercise tones muscles, prevents dragging fatigue and backache, which are depressing in themselves, she recommends sports for all women.

"Be sensible about it though," she warns. "All sports are fun, but you must know how to handle them, otherwise you may do more damage than good. Tennis is fine for the young, but as the body ages and slows down, choose something more suitable. After 40, try golf, or even sedentary cycling to keep your body trim."

There's no reason why you shouldn't ski, says Dr. Macdonald, adding the reminder, "but learn to fall properly because as life goes on, bones get more fragile."

Are you getting enough sleep? Do you take every opportunity to put your feet up?

"Although sleep is a personal thing, and teenagers need a lot more rest than women in their 30s, eight hours of rest is essential for everyone," says Dr. Macdonald. She stresses rest rather than sleep, and points out that you'll feel far better if you take 15 minutes to put your feet up at noon.

"Of course, worry can prevent women from sleeping—it can also cause tension, particularly in older women. Therefore, good mental health is particularly important." The doctor suggests a routine that incorporates fresh air and activity to keep your mind off yourself. "Do things for other people," she advises.

Diet is on most women's minds, because we don't like to see bulges every time we look in a mirror. But let's not go to extremes, Dr. Macdonald says. See you get meat or fish, vegetables, cheese, milk and fruit daily. "And don't overdo the bread—three slices are enough for anybody."

With all the controversy over smoking in the past year, are you still using a pack a day? And what will it do to your appearance?

"Cosmetically, it's very hard on your teeth, for it stains them." Then Dr. Macdonald points out, "Nobody can afford to ignore the fact that smoking has been proved harmful."

Despite this, she is against women who have been using smoking as a crutch giving it up. "A nervous person can get into all sorts of difficulties stopping it suddenly."

What does a dermatologist think about the cosmetics women use today? I asked Dr. A. L. Hudson his opinion of the creams we use for cleansing, and of some makeup.

The first thing he told me was that nothing is a more effective cleansing agent than soap and water. "But it dries my skin," you say?

"Dry skin is frequently dried out grease, the residue of creams which have not been properly removed from the skin. Liquid petrolatum, an ingredient of baby oil, is as good a lubricant as anything, but there is no way to prevent dry skin—the advice I give most people is to wash with a neutral soap and lubricate with oil."

At twelve tonight, when the peal of bells fills the land from coast to coast, Birks of Canada will be wishing you well for 1965.

May all that is symbolic of the New Year bring to each of you happiness, good health and greater achievements... as well as confidence in the future of our Canadian way of life.

For Traveller

Snow Makes It Special

By TRUDY KEMP

By the time Mrs. James Denholm returns to her home in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, she will have travelled close to 50,000 miles on her round-the-world trip.

She arrived in Victoria in time to spend Christmas with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Anderson of Kelly Road, Colwood. . . . And it was indeed a happy Christmas for the Anderson family and Mrs. Denholm. It was the first time in over 30 years that brother's wife and five children, another and it was the first time Mrs. Denholm had met her brother's wife and five children. During her stay here she has also had a chance to meet a number of aunts and cousins on her mother's side, many for the first time.

The fact that Victoria experienced a white Christmas has made the festive season just a little more special for someone who, for the past three years, has been used to the temperature hovering between 90 and 96 degrees most of the year.

Mrs. Denholm left her Malaysian home the beginning of October on her round-the-world trip and was accompanied by her husband as far as England where he stayed over to spend his leave. Mrs. Denholm, who is with the Malaysian government in the treasury department, will return to Kuala Lumpur by way of the Suez Canal several weeks before his wife is due home.

The Denholms left Singapore for Naples aboard the Italian ship, Marconi, and before arriving in England visited a number of European cities, including Rome, Cannes, Nice and Paris. Following a visit in London and southern England Mrs. Denholm left for Canada, stopping off in Montreal for a day before coming to Victoria.

She plans to leave January 19 on the Arcadia from Vancouver and among her ports of call will be San Francisco, Honolulu, New Zealand, Sydney and Hong Kong. She will meet Mr. Denholm in Singapore in March and from there will return to their home in the Malaysian capital.

Moving about the globe seems to be the Denholms' way of life and something they both enjoy. Shortly after their marriage in Glasgow, Scotland, they moved to Bombay, India where Mr. Denholm worked for three years in the field of commerce with a private firm. They returned to England to live for a short time before taking off for Johannesburg, South Africa, their home for the next two years. Mr. Denholm's work then took them back to England and several years later they left for Malaysia.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Denholm, who was born in Yorkshire, England, was a fashion buyer in Glasgow — her husband's birthplace. Among her favorite pastimes now are flower arranging, designing and making her own clothes and reading. She also finds time to play golf and counts swimming as her favorite sport.

In Paris

Small Head Emerges

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Small hats and close-fitting hair styles are the most dramatic new feature of Paris winter fashions.

Neat, head-hugging millinery abolishes all height and volume at the top of the silhouette. The effect of the small head emerges as an integral part of the new look.

Kerchief and scarf hats are the dominant new trend, introduced by every leading fashion house and specialized milliner.

Christmas Banquet

CHEMUNUS — W.B.A. Review 19, held their annual Christmas banquet recently with Mrs. M. Cook as convener assisted by other members. Mrs. Cook was presented with a lapel pin for appreciation of her handling of the refreshment committee for the past year.

A brief business meeting followed the turkey dinner and members were reminded of the installation of officers for 1965 which will be held on Feb. 19.

Mrs. I. Southern, president, distributed Christmas gifts from a gaily decorated tree and cut a Christmas cake, which she made and decorated.

in an individual manner. Kerchief hats have a casual do-it-yourself effect, though actually they demand skilful cutting and draping to avoid a bulky appearance.

Hubert de Givenchy featured kerchief hats throughout his entire collection, worked in everything from the silk and wool jersey to mink. Fabric models were draped like a Martinique turban. Many were made of Givenchy's own printed silk scarves.

Paulette draped scarf hats as softly as he traditional turbans. She likewise endorsed asymmetry with ends trailing down and across one shoulder. Helmets and little caps that fit as snugly as a bathing cap shared top honors with scarf hats. They were most becoming in such flat-haired furs as mink or beaver, and generally hid every strand of the wearer's own hair, except the bangs.

Pierre Balmain showed snug beanies draped around the hairline. They were made of wool jersey to match the suit, blouse or dress, and had an optional muffler which passed through a slit at the nape of the neck and swathed the throat.

Lanvin featured supple skull caps and beanies ringed round the face with fur. All these hats, like the new dress silhouettes, were made without buckram or stiffening and could be folded into a handbag or suitcase for travelling.

A special memorial service for Muriel Harman, Victoria missionary who was killed by Congo rebels Nov. 25, will be held at 11 a.m. in the Church of Our Lord, Blanchard and Humboldt.

A wreath of white chrysanthemums, in the shape of a cross, has been sent in the sanctuary for the service, which will be delivered by Bishop D. A. G. Rankin.

Two scripture lessons will be read.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton will read the 40th chapter of Isaiah. Cecil Laundry, grandson of the late Bishop Edward Cridge, will read the seventh chapter of Revelations.

The former Anglican bishop of the diocese of Saskatchewan, Right Rev. Henry Martin, now honorary assistant bishop of the B.C. diocese, will preach at the 11 a.m. choral eucharist service in Christ Church Cathedral.

At the 9:30 a.m. family communion and instruction Miss Gillian Clarke, diocesan youth worker, will speak.

At Evensong, which will be held at 4 p.m. this Sunday, the sermon will be given by Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert.

Presbyterian Church in Prophets for 1965. In the morning Dr. McLean will speak on the subject "In the New World."

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the Emmanuel Baptist Church at the morning service, and the pastor, Rev. Alvin C. Hamill, will preach on "Widen Your Affections. At the evening service Mr. Hamill will preach on "A Spiritual Check-up, followed by a discussion in which the congregation will be invited to participate."

How the first commandment gives purpose and direction to human endeavors will be the central theme of the Christian Science Church.

An Authentic Redemptive Community will be the topic for Rev. Robert J. D. Morris, First United Church, at 9:30 and 11 a.m. services.

Sharing in the 9:30 a.m. service will be Rob Nelson, director of Christian education, and his wife; at the 11 a.m. service, J. P. Fitzwater will participate. Mr. Morris will speak at the evening service on the subject "A Prosperous New Year."

'Soldiers' Serve God and Man

Army Completes 100 Years Of Fighting Fear, Hunger

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

With booming drum and quiet prayer, a robust world-wide army today enters its second century of "warfare" — in behalf of God and man.

The Salvation Army, founded in London, begins a year-long observance of its centenary.

"Methods have changed, but not the motivation," says U.S. national commander, Commissioner Holland French of New York.

The objective still "is fighting the good fight against hunger and fear, neglect and loneliness, doubt and delinquency."

At army camps across North America, devotional vigils New Year's Night marked the start of the centennial observance, and also launched an evangelistic crusade with the theme, "Christ for the World."

It is a dedicated and distinctive army.

Its "weapons" are prayer, the Bible and a cheerfully helping hand.

minister turned independent evangelist to work in the London slums. It has undergone many developments.

Says Commissioner French: "Instead of old-type 'rescue homes for unmarried mothers, today we have modern maternity homes and hospitals. "Alcoholism, which General Booth long before others recognized as a disease as well as a sin, is now approached with medical and psychiatric treatment along with spiritual consultation."

Concert Tickets On Sale

Tickets can now be bought through city churches for the Beverly Shea evening of sacred music in Central Junior High School at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 8.

Associated for years with the work of Billy Graham, the Canadian-born singer will include in his concert such favorites as How Great Thou Art and his own composition, I'd Rather Have Jesus.

With Mr. Shea will be Canadian-born pianist Ted Smith.

CONTRADERS COMING

The concert is termed by the organizers as a preliminary to the Leighton Ford-Billy Graham Crusades to be held on the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island this spring and summer.

The one-dollar tickets may be obtained from Charles Ellington, 608 Yates Street, phone 388-484, as well as at local churches.

His musical setting of the poem has been titled Epiphany Carol. It will be sung Sunday by Helen Sewell.

In Victoria

Insurance Numbers Repeated

Duplications in social insurance numbers are appearing at the Victoria office of the unemployment insurance service, manager George Bevis said Wednesday.

Applications are coming in at a rate of 1,000 a month, he said.

Mr. Bevis said the duplications are accidental or deliberate and should be corrected.

REPORT PROBLEM

The first thing a person must do is report the problem to the nearest local office, taking or mailing all the social insurance number cards in his possession.

The commission will cancel the later number or numbers and supply the employee with a new registration card if the first has been misplaced.

ONE NUMBER

It is important that an employee have only one social insurance number, so that his unemployment insurance contributions will be correctly credited to his account. Thus, should the occasion arise that he must make claim for unemployment insurance benefits, all of his contributions will be considered.

Bonner:

B.C.'s Rights Usurped

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday the decision by Ottawa to refer the matter of offshore mineral rights to the Supreme Court of Canada is "a major incursion" into the rights of the provinces.

He said Prime Minister Pearson had adopted the Tory policy "of casting sheep's eyes" at the provincial resources, and added that had the decision been made while the Commons was in session, MPs may have disapproved.

B.C. wanted a "fast, final answer to the whole question," said Mr. Bonner, but the federal government could have handled the problem more easily "by simply conveying offshore rights to the provinces."

LONG DISPUTE

The B.C. and federal governments have been in dispute since 1959 about the jurisdiction of offshore oil.

At that time the provincial government established a Crown reserve over an estimated 15,000,000 acres of exploration land on the continental shelf off the West Coast.

It has issued exploration licences to Shell Oil Company of Canada for 13,000,000 acres ranging from Port Renfrew to the Queen Charlottes.

Victoria Pioneer Dies, 81

Ernest Macdonald, a resident of Victoria for 70 years, died Wednesday in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He was 81.

Mr. Macdonald was with the Victoria city waterworks department for 46 years, retiring in 1930 as superintendent.

He was in charge of construction of Smith's Hill reservoir, the Sooke Lake pipeline and the development of the Sooke Lake watershed.

BOER WAR VETERAN

The pioneer served in the Boer War, was a life member of the Knights of Pythias and a member of Britannia Lodge No. 73, AF and AM, GRBC.

His wife Mary died in July of this year.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. J. Harry Downard and Mrs. Flora Frankland of Victoria; a sister, Mrs. Percy Wilson of Victoria, and two grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Brothers.

Maple Leaf Flying
In Matter of WeeksSinging Britons
See 1964 Out

LONDON (Reuters) — A singing, swaying mass of thousands packed London's Trafalgar Square Thursday night to give a noisy send-off to 1964.

Some merry-makers jumped fully-clothed into flood-lit fountains.

In Westminster Abbey celebrants attended vigil and watch night service.

Britain Shakes Up
Diplomatic Service

LONDON (CP)—A big change in British diplomacy takes place today. The Commonwealth relations office is absorbed by the foreign office under a form of unification to be known as Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service.

Physically, there may be no dramatic shift for a number of months. There still may be the same number of typewriters and the same number of stenographers. But recruiting will undergo immediate decisive change.

STIFF EXAMINATIONS

For example, in former times Britons could decide to join the foreign service and attempt to pass what was long described as "very stiff examinations."

Or they could take the less arduous civil examinations for home service and thereby qualify for duty anywhere within the Commonwealth.

RARE EXCEPTIONS

Diplomats will be interchangeable. In former times, with rare exceptions, a diplomat who joined the home service could hope eventually to become a high commissioner to Ottawa or other Commonwealth posts, but he could not hope to become an ambassador outside the Commonwealth.

In the same way, a member of the foreign office could hope eventually to become an ambassador to Washington or Paris, but not a high commissioner to Ottawa or New Delhi. Now they can be switched.

World Customs Varied as Locales

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The happy holiday of New Year's—the time for a fresh start and firm resolutions—was celebrated East and West today with customs as varied as the locales.

Temple bells chimed in Japan. South Americans tossed showers of paper from office windows. Romans threw junk to the streets in riddance of the old year.

New York's Times Square, a hub for New Year's Eve celebrators, marked the advent of 1965 with the traditional lowering of a lighted ball from a pole atop the old Times Tower at the stroke of midnight.

Thousands gathered for the event and millions watched on television.

Communists joined in, too.

Communist China announced it would refrain from shelling Quemoy and other Nationalist islands Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 as an "expression of consideration" to allow local inhabitants to celebrate New Year's.

The occasion gave the Soviet Union a chance to claim another first. Moscow Radio said

Maine to Texas

Strike Looms
On U.S. Docks

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—Talks broke off abruptly Thursday, further heightening possibility of a dock strike all along the U.S. Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico coasts by Jan. 11.

Negotiations here centre on the West Gulf from Lake Charles, La., to Brownsville, Tex., but a strike here could cause walkouts as far east and north as Maine.

New York longshoremen have reached agreement and other area negotiations are going on without difficulty. But a strike here could upset the New York agreement.

CHANGE CLIMATE

Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds returned to Washington saying he saw no point in continuing his mediation efforts until the present climate is changed.

The problem, he said, revolves around shippers' claims that Houston dock workers have not reported for work as ordered and the union's reply that ample workers were supplied.

COULD BE STRIKE

International Longshoremen's president Thomas W. Gleason said he did not believe a strike is imminent. However, he said that if all ports from Maine to Texas did not have contract agreements by Jan. 11, a major walkout might occur.

Cuban Refugees
Reach Safety

MANAGUA (Reuters) — Eleven Cubans, including three women and four children, have reached Nicaragua after two perilous weeks at sea in an attempt to flee by boat to Jamaica from Cienfuegos, 150 miles southeast of Havana.

U.K. Trade Deficit
Continues to Soar

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain's balance of payments deficit for the first nine months of 1964—the difference between exports and imports—was £612,000,000 ($1,800,000,000) it was officially announced here Thursday.

These figures, for both current and long-term capital transactions, were given in the latest issues of Economic Trends, an official government publication, which reveals that the deficit for the third quarter of the year alone was £203,000,000.

Political observers said the figures backed up the Labor

Chiang

Chiang Vows
To Destroy
China's Bomb

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek Thursday vowed he would destroy China's nuclear installations to block development of a delivery system that could "spread devastation to all parts of the world."

The 77-year-old generalissimo did not disclose how he intended to carry out the pledge made in his annual New Year's message.

He said the "entire human race" had called on him to stop China from becoming a world atomic power.

While ridiculing Peking's claim that it will be able to mass produce nuclear weapons in three years, Chiang conceded that the first Chinese atomic bomb test last October was "a danger signal for our nation."

West Coast Floods

HELICOPTERS
BEAT STORM

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A dozen helicopters finally got through Thursday on food supply and evacuation flights to California's Salmon River canyon hamlets isolated for 10 days by flood and snowstorm.

On the Pacific coast an overnight snow—rare along the Pacific shore—covered California's Humboldt and Del Norte counties.

Landslide dams raised new flood threats in the Redwood lumber region, hardest hit by the $100,000,000 Christmas week flood which ravaged areas of five western states.

HEAVY SNOW

Renewed heavy snow was forecast for the Sierra and the Sierrita Mountains.

A snow New Year's Day was promised also for the flood-stricken states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Nevada.

The break in the storm at Yreka after four days of snow turned loose 12 helicopter pilots for shuttle flights to the isolated canyon towns of Ti-Bar, Sawyers Bar, Forks of Salmon, Cecilville and Findlay Camp.

LONELY REGION

Between 300 and 500 hardy people live in the lonely river gorge region.

All residents chose to stay by their homes in the rugged Sierrita region near the Oregon border.

Two families marooned in a three-room cabin after the flood washed away the Ti-Bar forest ranger station reached Yreka by helicopter Wednesday night.

In the group was Mrs. Larry Evans, 21, who expects a second child within a week.

In coastal Humboldt County up to an inch of snow fell and then melted in Eureka, the region's major city of 30,000 population.

A lake three miles long has built up behind a landslide that formed a dam 600 feet high on Hurdy Gurdy Creek in Del Norte County.

LAKE GROWING

Another lake was building behind an earth-slide dam at Gun Barrell Camp on the Smith River.

Charles Wood, disaster chief of the U.S. office of emergency planning, said the Army Corps of Engineers was trying to transport equipment to open a channel in the Hurdy Gurdy dam.

Vancouver Digs
As Snow Falls

VANCOUVER (CP)—More heavy snow hit a cowering Vancouver Thursday, just in time to decimate party-bound traffic.

Cab companies did a frantic business after the storm struck at dusk, delivering a heavy fall of wet snow on a brisk wind.

But even taxis soon were going out of business. Police cars were moving with difficulty with chains.

The weather system was expected to leave six to 12 inches of new snow behind, taking the total average fall here in the last two weeks of December to more than 40 inches.

Roads by 7 p.m. were extremely dangerous under a one-inch layer of new snow thickening rapidly.

The storm covered the entire coast, including much of Vancouver Island. (See Page 12.)

Meanwhile, relief in one form was on the way. Continuous snow had resulted in Greater Vancouver using up its supplies of rough salt needed to melt snow and ice on streets.

MORE SALT

The Canadian Pacific Railway announced that nine carloads of salt were on a "hot shot" train—virtually an express freight—that left Toronto Thursday. It was expected to arrive in five days. Eleven more cars were leaving Friday.

The city Wednesday recorded its third death attributed to the weather. Richard Fladgate, 52, controller of Vancouver General Hospital, died of a heart attack while digging his car out of a snowbank.

Greater Vancouver schools and the University of B.C. said they planned to open on schedule Monday.

British Troops
To Sail

LONDON (AP)—Two British battalions, infantry and paratroops, will sail for the Far East within the next few days in view of Indonesia's increasing build-up against Malaysia, the defence ministry announced Thursday.

The third Greenjackets will go to Hong Kong to release from there a Gurkha battalion for service in Malaysia. The 2nd Parachute Battalion will probably go to Singapore.

Advance troops from both units will leave England this weekend.

A British battalion numbers up to 1,000 men.

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) Syed Putra, Malaysian Supreme Head of State, called on Indonesia Thursday to end its undeclared war against the federation.

In a country wide broadcast he said that in face of the Indonesian military reverses in Malaysia and defeats abroad, it would have been reasonable to expect President Sukarno to have a change of heart.

Stanley Matthews Knighted

Soccer Star Wins Place on Honors List

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth's New Year's honors list issued Thursday made awards to key men behind Britain's new export drive, Olympic athletes and one of the world's greatest soccer players.

The annual honors list, first since Prime Minister Harold Wilson's new Labor government came into power, introduced a special citation—"for services to exports."

category, to Maurice Piennes and Ronald Thornton.

Awards were made to three British athletes who competed in track and field in the Tokyo Olympics, the most successful for Britain more than 50 years. The athletes are Robbie Brightwell, Ann Packer and Mrs. Mary Rand.

The first-ever knighthood to a professional soccer player went to Stanley Matthews, who will be 50 next month.

The list, approved by the Queen in close consultation with the prime minister and government departments, followed the pattern set by previous British Labor governments in that hereditary titles were excluded, although there were four life peerages.

Three men of special interest to Canada are mentioned.

Sir Saville Garner, 56, British high commissioner in Canada from 1956-61, is promoted to a Knight Grand Cross from Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Sir Saville, now permanent undersecretary of state in the Commonwealth relations office, also served in Ottawa during the Second World War. He has honorary law degrees from the Universities of Toronto and British Columbia.

Appointed a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George is Alexander Currie, 47, the senior British trade commissioner in Canada. Before taking up his Ottawa post in December, 1963, Currie was head of the British industries development office in New York.

Appointed a Commander of the Order of the British Empire is Prof. Joseph Rotblat, 54, secretary-general of the Pugwash conferences on science and world affairs.

The annual conferences, involving some 25 countries from both sides of the iron curtain, originated in 1957 at the Pugwash, N.S., estate of Canadian-born Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

The situation specifically for services to exports are expected to recur in future honors lists. Piennes, a member of a consortium presently exploring for oil and natural gas in the North Sea, played a big part in 1956

PORT ALBERNI—Job opportunities in the Alberni Valley and the Island's west coast area increased by more than 15 per cent in the 1963-64 season, says the National Employment Office. The office, which serves the Alberni area and the west coast north to Zeballos, says the number of new hirings reported by employers from September of 1963 to last August totalled 6,811—an increase of more than 1,200 from the previous year.

A NES spokesman said these figures do not include firms employing fewer than 10 people, which are not required to report their hirings.

Island Area Voices Flood Fear

Special to the Colonist

Fears that a sudden thaw and rain could turn high-piled snow into a fast flood were voiced in one area of Vancouver Island Thursday—but weather forecasters predicted more snow and cold.

North Cowichan works supervisor Perry Ross said he was "very worried because any sort of fast flood would be very bad."

"If it rained and got warm at the same time the Cowichan River would fill in a hurry," he said. "The only hope would be that the river might get wild enough to cut itself a new channel to the sea."

However, other municipal officials said they felt recent river work, including dredging of sandbars, would take care of any rush of flood water.

FOR BOTH COASTS
The forecast for both the east and west coasts of Vancouver Island was continued clouds and cold, with snow buries or scattered snow showers today and Saturday.

Gale warnings were posted in most areas. Temperature extremes were estimated at 25-35 for Nanaimo and 32-35 for Estevan Point.

FIGURE GIVEN

Snow resumed Thursday afternoon or evening in almost every up-island area. Ground totals at 5 p.m. were about a foot in the Cowichan area, 16 inches at Nanaimo, 30 inches in the Alberni, 25 inches in the Comox Valley, 11 inches at Tofino and seven inches at Estevan Point.

Victoria weatherman Wilmar Mackie said the overnight fall could total six inches but warm temperatures this afternoon might melt much of that. The daily routine of nighttime freeze and daytime thaw was continuing to cause road trouble.

The Malahat was described as "slippery," caution was urged in the Duncan and Nanaimo areas, and Courtenay district road conditions were termed treacherous. Highway problems seemed to be worst in the Alberni. Snow tires or chains were required for cars going over the Hump into the area and the Alberni-Tofino road was being kept open by what some were called "amazing" efforts by road crews.

The Alberni's snow total of almost 80 inches for December was far over the previous record of 48 inches in 1911. Long Beach Transport was still getting through to the Tofino-Ucluelet-Long Beach area with mail and other freight.

RCAF Station Comox, closed temporarily Wednesday, was kept open Thursday partly through the help of a huge snowplow flown from Edmonton in a Hercules transport plane.

BUS LINE BUSY

Vancouver Island Coach Lines was the only means of transportation for many people between Parksville and Campbell River. Cars with chains were going into ditches but buses were making trips even before snowplows started work.

Coach Lines official David Jones said all of his company's buses were in service as people decided to leave their cars at home.

WORK SPURNED

A wall of snow more than six feet high divides many Courtenay streets in half. Few sidewalks are cleared and meters are forgotten as cars, pedestrians and children on sleighs use only the road—and no accidents so far.

One Courtenay store manager said he couldn't find enough youngsters to shovel off his roof, even at $1 an hour. Some children said they were on holiday and the work was too hard.

STATION ISOLATED

The federal transport department's Loran and weather station at Spring Island lost its only means of obtaining supplies and mail from the nearby community of Kyquoot when the station boat Tulloch broke from its moorings and ran onto some rocks.

A Kyquoot vessel will be chartered until the Tulloch can be replaced.

Many Missed Home Grant

The deadline passed at 5 p.m. Thursday and many Greater Victorians failed to claim the $85 homeowner's grant.

Saanich was about the busiest municipal hall as dozens of homeowners made last-minute claims Wednesday and Thursday.

A few people trickled into the other municipal halls but officials said scores of ratepayers were phoning to check if they had claimed the grant.

Crime Down, Convictions Up

Victoria Was Safer in 1964 Under Revamped Police Force

By AL ARNASON

Victoria was a safer place to live in 1964 than it was in 1963, according to police statistics.

Common assaults, sex crimes, burglary and fraud all showed substantial decreases during the first 11 months of 1964 compared with the previous year's figures.

Criminal convictions also took an upswing in 1964 with December figures as yet not tabulated. Assault reports climbed to 171 in 1963, but dropped better than 30 per cent to 122 in 1964. Of these, 97 were cleared by arrest or investigation and ended in 33 convictions—nearly twice the 1963 convictions.

Sex crimes dropped from 45

to 33 with 10 convictions handed down by the courts, a 100 per cent boost over last year's conviction total.

Breaking and entering, one of the most common criminal activities dealt with by the city's 104-member force plunged dramatically from 483 to 273 occurrences. Convictions for this offence also took a tumble from 31 to 25. About 180 have never been solved, compared with last year's 386 outstanding break-ins.

Gambling, Vice Down

The costly and time-consuming crime of fraud rose dived by a third to 150 from a 1963 total of 304 incidents. This includes bad cheques, false pretences, and gaining food and lodgings by fraud.

The gambling and vice picture came into clearer focus as new-broomed police investigated six gaming house setups and pushed through seven convictions. There were none in 1963.

Prostitution came to the surface in six persons were convicted in the past 11 months in three cases.

Robbery statistics look alarming at first glance, with 75 in 1964 compared with four in 1963.

Chief John Gregory, now more than a year into his two-year term as top city policeman, says it's misleading.

A new police system tallying robberies now embraces purse-snatchings (about 20 this year), and borderline thefts, distorting the figures.

Even so, robberies have increased "some."

Not Violent Town

"But this is not a violent town," said the chief, who served earlier in Kitimat and other industrial centres with the RCMP.

Most of the work of reorganizing the force has been completed or started, said the chief constable.

Of 56 Archer Report recommendations, 47 were in force in the first few months of the Mountie's leave of absence to take on the Victoria police shakeup.

Biggest headache for the force was the headquarters building that Mr. Archer described as being like something out of Dickens.

"We hope to be able to move into the renovated building some time this fall, maybe September. When that's done most of the problems will be ironed out," the chief said.

Another major change has been the switch of responsibility for investigation of bootlegging and gambling from uniformed to detective branch.

Police More Efficient

Some other major changes have contributed to higher police morale and efficiency. They include:

- Bringing departments into closer interplay.
- Launching a vigorous training program.
- Switching radio communications to a code system.
- Establishing closer control systems for keeping track of court exhibits.
- Increased training in breathalyzer operators.

Training constables in detective department duties two at a time in six-month shifts.

In nine months the job of re-vamping the department will probably be complete.

That's when the police commission will make its decision on the next move—and it is also the end of Chief Gregory's leave of absence from the RCMP.

"That's up to the police commission," said the chief without elaborating.

Public Demand

Beer Parlors End Meal Hour Closing

Greater Victoria beer parlors have bowed to public demand and starting today will abolish closure during the supper hour.

The area's 14 pubs will remain open from 11 a.m. to midnight Monday through Friday and 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

During the past year staying open between the normal 7-to-10 p.m. supper hour was optional but hotelmen have decided to remain open for the next 12 months on a trial basis.

"If the public doesn't like it, we'll switch back," a spokesman for the Greater Victoria Hotels Association said.

The ruling affects the eight Victoria pubs, three in Esquimalt and three in the Langford-Cowd area.

STAGGERED HOURS

Many beer parlors throughout B.C. have already abolished the supper-hour closing.

It means waiters will have staggered supper hours.

Local pubs have closed during the hour for about 12 years.

Ucluelet

Teacher Retires After 17 Years

UCLUELET—Mrs. Ralph H. (Phyllis) Clarke retired Thursday after 51 years as a teacher, the last 17 as teacher of primary grades in the Ucluelet Elementary School.

The school was only a two-room structure when Mrs. Clarke arrived here in September, 1947. Now Ucluelet Elementary is a modern, eight-room school.

Before her arrival, Mrs.

Clarke taught for 34 years in Victoria area schools, including Lampson Street in Esquimalt and Bangford school.

She was given an engraved silver tea service and tray, a gold watch and a purse at a recent banquet held by the Ucluelet-Tofino school board in Wickannish Lodge at Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will spend their retirement at their home in Long Beach.

Chamber Names Lighting Winners

CUMBERLAND—Winners in the fourth annual Christmas lighting contest sponsored by the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce were announced Thursday by Chamber secretary Mrs. Ruth McKellar.

Home lighting judges Rev. S. Robertson and Rev. V. Lord awarded first prize to D. K.

Fredrickson, 2nd Street; second prize to Ben Rempell, Penarth Avenue; third prize to Mrs. Lena McKenzie and special mention to A. Bonora, Penarth Avenue.

First and second awards in this category were donated by B.C. Hydro and the other prizes by the Chamber. All were merchandise gifts.

Waverly Hotel won the commercial lighting contest and the Cumberland fire department was second. The cash awards were donated by the Chamber.

The secretary said entries reached a record, as they have in each of the Chamber's four sponsoring years. The prizes will be presented at a Chamber meeting Jan. 19.

Building and Beautification

Today Opens Year of Challenge for Victoria

By A. H. MURPHY
Colonist City Hall Reporter

The new year will be one of challenge for Victoria. And, if the buoyant, confident atmosphere at city hall is an indication, it will be one of challenges met and conquered.

Mayor R. B. Wilson and the other members of his "team" who are back in municipal office, feel that the city's beautification program must be pushed to the utmost.

It will be a year of completion for such projects as the $3,000,000 Centennial Square complex and with others, such as Bastion Square. It will be a year of starting and completion.

Another massive job which will be begun in 1965 will be the $1,000,000 six-lane traffic artery which will channel cars from the city's northern border to its heart.

The city's massive capital budget program will move into its second stage and, in addition to the more spectacular achievements such as buildings, squares and malls, there will be a lot of work done on basic plans, such as trunk sewers, park improvements and maintenance.

Early in the new year the Capital Region Planning Commission is expected to hand down a traffic study which has been long in preparation.

This report is of vital importance to Victoria and to the whole area. Upon its recommendations will depend, to a large extent, future planning for the city and, particularly, for Saanich.

A big social event as well as one of importance to the city will be the opening of McPherson Playhouse in February.

Work will still be in progress on the theatre restaurant and an adjoining scene laid at the time of the opening but the playhouse proper will be ready for action.

Centennial Square, of which the theatre is a part, will be completed in 1965, it is expected.

Work will be started early this year on Bastion Square. Plans have been almost completed and the reconversion of the historic old lower town site should be completed in late spring or early summer.

Second stage of the downtown paint-up plan will be completed in 1965 and plans will be begun for the downtown pedestrian mall.

This mall, which will include Broad Street, will do as much as anything so far accomplished to change the appearance of the heart of the downtown area.

Big things should develop in urban renewal in 1965.

Under the new regulations it is expected that it will be possible to apply urban renewal programs to non-housing areas of the city. This means that it could apply to downtown areas and open up vast possibilities for the city.

Work and study will undoubtedly go forward in 1965 on plans for the area's centennial project.

This may well be a covered stadium for the district as advocated by so many local sportsmen.

Work will begin in earnest on the five-mile Japan Gulch tunnel which will boost the city's water supply sufficiently to serve a population of 250,000.

Helicopter To Lift Ski Tow

COURTENAY — The federal defence department has granted permission for the use of a helicopter from RCAF Station Comox's 121 Search and Rescue Unit for the ski-tow job in the Forbidden Plateau area.

Installation of cable and machinery for the new T-bar tow of the Mt. Becher Ski Development Society was started by Okanagan Helicopters Ltd. and was to have been completed by the same firm.

Society officials said the weight of the last equipment to be installed was so much an RCAF helicopter was needed.

The work will be done Saturday, weather permitting.

The project is slightly behind schedule because the machinery did not arrive as early as anticipated.

The new schedule was approved recently by the Public Utilities Commission. It allows increases on fare of about 50 per cent—less than the B.C. Hydro asked but much more than most municipal leaders and voters' groups thought should have been allowed.

Student cash fare is 15 cents with four tickets for 50 cents. Cash fare for children is 10 cents with four tickets for 30 cents.

Student fares, which are good at all times, apply to pupils under 21 years of age regularly attending classes up to grade 12. Official school passes must be shown bus operators at the time students fares are purchased.

Child fares apply to any person under 12 years of age. Children under five may ride free when accompanied by an adult or student.

Bennett Snubs New Party

Premier W. A. C. Bennett has no interest in a new political party.

Before heading south for a holiday, Mr. Bennett said: "I'm opposed to another political party in Canada—especially a party of the right. We won't be a party to any new political party but we'll co-operate with any government in Ottawa that has good policies."
